Contents

List of contributors ix

Introduction 1
MARTIN BELOV

PART I
The imaginary foundations of representative democracy 15

1 Imaginaries of representation: there and back again 17
MARTIN BELOV

2 Programmatic government beyond conceptual distinctions 49
ZORAN OKLOPCIC

3 Framing political processes through constitution-based symbolic representation 64
MATIJA MILOŠ

PART II
Crisis, fear, and their impact on representative democracy 87

4 The global pandemic as a challenge to representative democracy 89
JAN ADAMOWSKI AND MONIKA FLORCZAK-WĄTOR

5 Crisis, fear, and rhetorical democracy: appeals to pathos in Dutch political debates on the COVID-19 pandemic 107
BART VAN KLINK AND INGEBORG VAN DER GEEST

6 Fake news and democracy: a lesson from the COVID-19 pandemic 130
GUERINO FARES

PART III
Agencification, transnational administrative networks, and the future of representative democracy: democratic-technocratic (dis)balance and trends toward technocracy, bureaucracy, and expertocracy? 143

7 Administrative legislative policy in EU national communities: assessing benefits and risks amidst the globalization of law 145
MAURO ZAMBONI

8 The role of European composite administration in the GDPR, the AI Act and the EHDS regulation – what about the rule of law? 170
JANE REICHEL

9 Coherence in diversity? Exploring the institutional dynamic of enforcement networks in the EU internal market 197
ANTONINA BAKARDJIEVA ENGELBREKT

PART IV
International, transnational, and global dimensions of representative democracy 251

10 Democracy and the rights of representation in the case law of the European Court of Human Rights 253
ŠEJLA IMAMOVIĆ

11 Global democracy: between people's representation and participation 274
MARIA VICTORIA KRISTAN

Index 295