Contents

1 From Characters to Books: Shang and Zhou Dynasties 1
1.1 The Origins of Books 1
1.1.1 Exploration of the Origin of "Books" 2
1.1.2 "Oracle Bone Inscription of Yin" and "Bronze Vessel of King Tang" 7
1.1.3 "Dian" and "Ce" 12
1.2 Books in the Zhou Dynasty 17
1.2.1 "Rites of Zhou" and Book of Zhou 17
1.2.2 "The Six Classics" and Confucius 20
1.2.3 Official Historian System and Document Management 27

2 From "Contention of a Hundred Schools of Thought" to "Burning of Books and Burying of Confucian Scholars": The Warring States Period to Qin Dynasty 31
2.1 Ideology and Culture in the Warring States Period 31
2.1.1 "Jixia Academy" and "Contention of a Hundred Schools of Thought" 32
2.1.2 Books of the Warring States Period Revealing "Prosperity of Thought" 34
2.2 Despotism of the First Emperor of the Qin Dynasty and "Burning of Books and Burying of Confucian Scholars" 38
2.2.1 Shang Yang's Reform and the Autocratic Culture of the Qin Dynasty 38
2.2.2 "Burning of Books and Burying of Confucian Scholars" and Disaster of Books 41

3 A Multicultural Era: Han, Wei, and the Southern and Northern Dynasties 47
3.1 Academics and Culture in the Han Dynasty 48
3.1.1 "The Learning of Classics" and Books in the Han Dynasty 49
3.1.2 Private and Official Book Holding in the Han Dynasty 62

3.2 The Invention of Papers 67
3.3 The Development and Integration of Diverse Cultures 71
3.3.1 Qilue, "Yiwen Zhi" in Hanshu and Collation of Books in the Han Dynasty 72
3.3.2 Religion, Chinese Metaphysics and Culture in the Wei and Jin Dynasties 75
3.3.3 Gathering and Translating of Daoist Canon and Buddhist Tripitaka 83
3.3.4 Public and Private Book Holding and Collation 88

4 The Imperial Examination, Schools and Woodblock Printing: Sui, Tang and Five Dynasties 97
4.1 Book Industry and Culture of the Sui, Tang and Five Dynasties ... 98
4.1.1 Emergence and Impacts of the Imperial Examination System 98
4.1.2 Book Compilation in the Sui, Tang and Five Dynasties 101
4.2 Collection and Collation of Literature in the Sui, Tang and Five Dynasties 115
4.2.1 Public and Private Book Collections in the Sui, Tang and Five Dynasties 115
4.2.2 Compilation and Impacts of the "Jingji Zhi" of Suishu 122
4.3 Dunhuang Documents 124
4.3.1 The History of Dunhuang Documents 124
4.3.2 The Contents of Dunhuang Documents 127
4.4 The Invention and Application of Printing Technology 128
4.4.1 The Origin of Woodblock Printing 129
4.4.2 Woodblock Printing in the Tang and Five Dynasties 141

5 The Golden Age of Prints: Song Dynasty 159
5.1 The Suppression of Military Development and Promotion of Cultural Progress in the Song Dynasty 159
5.1.1 Environment of Book Industry Development in the Song Dynasty 159
5.1.2 Compilation of the "Four Encyclopedias" and Academic Culture in the Song Dynasty 166
5.2 Conservation and Printing of Books in the Song Dynasty 177
5.2.1 Book Holding of the Song Dynasty 177
5.2.2 Printing in the Song Dynasty 189
5.2.3 Publishing Censorship and Book Market in the Song Dynasty 208
5.3 Movable Type Printing and Multi-color Printing 216
5.3.1 The Invention of Movable Type Printing 216
5.3.2 The Invention and Application of Multi-color Printing 223

6 Conflict and Fusion: Liao, Jin, Xia, and Yuan Dynasties 227
6.1 Collecting and Printing of Books in Liao, Jin and Xia 227
6.1.1 Culture of the Liao Dynasty and Its Printing Industry 227
6.1.2 Culture of the Jin Dynasty and Zhaocheng Jin Tripitaka ... 229
6.1.3 Culture of the Western Xia Dynasty and Tripitaka Translation 232
6.2 The Society and Culture of the Yuan Dynasty 234
6.2.1 Environment of Book Industry Development in the Yuan Dynasty 235
6.2.2 Book Compilation in the Yuan Dynasty 238
6.3 Collecting and Printing of Books in the Yuan Dynasty 243
6.3.1 Public and Private Book Collections in the Yuan Dynasty 243
6.3.2 Book Publishing and Management in the Yuan Dynasty ... 243

7 Book Industry in the Period of Great Prosperity: Early Ming to Mid-Qing Dynasty 255
7.1 Environment of Book Industry Development in the Ming Dynasty 256
7.1.1 Society and Culture of the Ming Dynasty 257
7.1.2 Introduction of Western Learning and Its Impact on the Late Ming and Early Qing China 263
7.2 Book Compilation, Conservation, and Publication in the Ming Dynasty 271
7.2.1 Yongle Dadian and Books of the Ming Dynasty 272
7.2.2 Public and Private Book Collection in the Ming Dynasty 282
7.2.3 Book Publishing and Management in the Ming Dynasty 285
7.3 Environment of Book Industry Development in the Qing Dynasty 296
7.3.1 "Literary Inquisition" in the Qing Dynasty 296
7.3.2 "Qian-Jia Learning" and Scholarship of the Qing Dynasty 301
7.4 Compilation, Collection and Printing of Books in the Qing Dynasty 306
7.4.1 Siku Quanshu, Siku Quanshu Zongmu and Official Book Compilation 306
7.4.2 Public and Private Collections of Books in the Qing Dynasty 311
7.4.3 Book Publishing and Book Market in the Qing Dynasty ... 312

7.5 Improvements of Printing Technology in the Ming and Qing Dynasties 317
7.5.1 Woodcuts, Multi-color Printing and Movable Type Printing 317
7.5.2 "Douban" and "Gonghua" 320

8 Book Industry in a Transitional Society: From Late Qing Dynasty to the Republic of China 325
8.1 Thought and Culture in Social Upheavals 326
8.1.1 "The Westernization Movement" and Translation and Publication of Western Books 327
8.1.2 Official Academies and Official Book Bureaus 330
8.1.3 The Impacts of Educational Reform to the Book Industry of Late Qing Dynasty 335
8.2 Changes of Book Industry in Late Qing Dynasty 340
8.2.1 Application of Modern Printing Technologies 340
8.2.2 Emergence of Modern Newspapers and Periodicals 344
8.2.3 Emergence of New Publishing Institutions and Enterprises 349
8.3 From Private Book Chambers to Public Libraries 355
8.3.1 Private Book Collectors in Late Qing Dynasty and Early Republic of China 355
8.3.2 The Emergence and Development of Public Libraries 356

Appendix: Evolution of Carriers and Forms of Ancient Chinese Books 369

Conclusion 417

Postscript 421

Glossary 425

References 441