

Contents

Foreword ix

Translator's Introduction xiii

Preface xvii

- I. "The Present Is the Only Goddess I Adore" 1
  - Faust and Helen
  - The Present, the Trivial, and the Ideal
  - Idyllic Arcadia
  - Unconscious Health or Conquered Serenity?
  - The Philosophical Experience of the Present
  - The Tradition of Ancient Philosophy in Goethe
  - The Present, the Instant, and Being-There in Goethe

2. The View from Above and the Cosmic Journey 40
  - The Instant and the View from Above
  - The View from Above in Antiquity: Peaks and Flight of the Imagination
  - The Philosophical Meaning of the View from Above among Ancient Philosophers
  - The Medieval and Modern Tradition
  - The Various Forms of the View from Above in Goethe
  - The View from Above after Goethe
  - Aeronauts and Cosmonauts

3. The Wings of Hope: The Urworte 85

Daimôn, Tikhê

Daimôn, Tikhê, Eros, Anankê, and Elpis

Human Destiny

Autobiographical Aspects?

The Caduceus

Elpis, Hope

4. The Yes to Life and the World 126

Great Is the Joy of Being-There (Freude des Daseins)

Greater Still Is the Joy One Feels in Existence Itself

(Freude am Dasein)

The Yes to Becoming and the Terrifying

Goethe and Nietzsche

Conclusion 143

Translator's Note 147

Notes 149

Bibliography 173

Index 175