

Contents

	Citation Information	vii
	Notes on Contributors	ix
	Introduction—Lost voices: on counteracting exclusion of women from histories of contemporary philosophy Sophia M. Connell and Frederique Janssen-Lauret	1
1	Worse than the best possible pessimism? Olga Plümacher's critique of Schopenhauer Christopher Janaway	13
2	Christine Ladd-Franklin on the nature and unity of the proposition Kenneth Boyd	33
3	"It is quite conceivable that judgment is a very complicated phenomenon": Dorothy Wrinch, nonsense and the multiple relation theory of judgement Giulia Felappi	52
4	Margaret MacDonald's scientific common-sense philosophy Justin Vlasits	69
5	Margaret MacDonald and Gilbert Ryle: a philosophical friendship Michael Kremer	90
6	Alice Ambrose and early analytic philosophy Sophia M. Connell	114
7	The early work of Martha Kneale, née Hurst Jane Heal	138

8	Ruth Barcan Marcus and quantified modal logic Frederique Janssen-Lauret	155
9	History of logic in Latin America: the case of Ayda Ignez Arruda Gisele Dalva Secco and Miguel Alvarez Lisboa	186
	Index	211