

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: The End of the Museum as We Know It	1
The Story of This Book	1
Museums as Pressure Points	3
Race and the Decolonial Conjuncture	6
Care, Repair, and Failure	10
Outside In, Inside Out	12
Road Map	15
1 Race and Racism in Memory, Heritage, and Museum Studies	22
Race as Memory, or What We Can Learn from Black Studies	26
Race and Memory Studies	29
Race and Heritage Studies	33
Race and Museum Studies	38
Adjacent Concepts	44
Conclusion	47
2 Curating the Colonial, or Decolonization without Race	59
The Museum Will Not Be Decolonized	61
Reframing the Colonial in European Museums	62
The Netherlands, or the Eruption of the Outside	63
Germany, or Racial Aphasia	71
Denmark, or the Exceptional Colonialist	76
Italy, or When Colonialism Is Packed Away in Crates	80
Conclusion	87

3 Otherwise Museums: Decolonization as Imaginative (Trans)institutional Practice	102
The Potential of the Void	104
Otherwise and Elsewhere	107
Assembling Platforms	110
Generative Ecosystems	115
Conclusion: What Next?	122
Index	130