

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of contributors	xi
Acknowledgements	xv
1 Introduction Chris Manias	1
Part I: Extinct reptiles
2 Arthur Conan Doyle, Michael Crichton, and the case of palaeontological fiction Richard Fallon and David Hone	27
3 Winsor McCay's Gertie : the first living dinosaur Victoria Coules	53
4 The 'Spin' in Spinosaurus : inventing a modern dinosaur superstar Will Tattersdill and Mark P. Witton	79
5 A good officer: the long and remarkable career of the chimaerel Naosaurus Ilja Nieuwland	109
6 From 'Long' to 'Feng': the marvellous new era of feathered dinosaur discoveries in modern China Zichuan Qin and Lukas Rieppel	131
Part II: Mammals and hominins
7 Mammals, the measure of success? The legacy of 'progress' in natural sciences Elsa Panciroli and Chris Manias	157

8	Literary beasts: fossil mammals, bone seekers and palaeontology in twentieth-century Argentina Irina Podgorny	191
9	When fieldwork goes wrong, go public: George Gaylord Simpson and Anne Roe in Venezuela, 1938–1939 Joe Cain	221
10	Shadows in the mirror: a discussion on understandings of Neanderthals and Australopithecines Chris Manias, Rebecca Wragg Sykes and Lydia Pyne	255
11	Palaeoanthropology and the mass media: an entangled history Oliver Hochadel	287
12	Pageants of life: conclusion and epilogue Chris Manias	317
	Index	339