

Contents

Preface	page xix
1 International Security: The Historical Evolution of a Discipline	1
1.1 The Great War and the Birth of a Discipline	3
1.2 The Cold War and Rationalism in Security Studies	7
1.3 The Post-Cold War Era and the War on Terror	10
1.4 The Search for a Non-Western International Relations	13
1.5 Conclusion	15
Discussion Questions	16
Further Reading	16
Part I Security in Theory
2 Realism(s)	19
2.1 Realism(s)	21
2.2 Classical Realism	22
2.3 Structural Realism and the Theory of International Politics	26
2.4 Neorealism's Offensive and Defensive Variants	28
2.5 Hegemonic Realism and Power-Transition Theory	33
2.6 Neoclassical Realism	35
2.7 Critiques of Realist Theories	36
2.8 Conclusion	37
Discussion Questions	39
Further Reading	39
3 Liberalism(s) and International Security	40
3.1 Kant and the Origins of Liberalism	41
3.2 Early Ideas about Commercial Liberalism	42
3.3 Idealism, War, and Collective Security	43
3.4 Complex Interdependence	49
3.5 Neoliberal Institutionalism	51
3.6 Regime Type and International Security	54
3.7 What Future for the Liberal International Order?	56
3.8 Conclusion	58
Discussion Questions	59
Further Reading	59

4 Making the Quest for Security "Scientific": Rational Choice and Game Theory	60
4.1 The Emergence of Rational Choice and Game-Theoretic Approaches	62
4.2 Fundamentals of Game Theory	65
4.3 Applications for Security Studies	67
4.3.1 The Prisoner's Dilemma and Other Commitment Problems	67
4.3.2 Games of Chicken and Other Commitment Problems	70
4.3.3 Stag Hunts and Other Collective-Action Problems	75
4.4 Heated Debates Around Scientific Rigor (and Rigor Mortis)	79
4.5 Conclusion	81
Discussion Questions	82
Further Reading	82
5 Making the Quest for Security "Scientific": Rational Choice and Peace Science Research	83
5.1 Fundamentals of Peace Science Research	87
5.2 Peace Science in Practice: Solving Problems of Measurement and Testing	93
5.2.1 Solving for Omitted Variables and Spurious Effects: The Democratic Peace Versus the Territorial Peace	94
5.2.2 Solving for Selection Effects: General Versus Immediate Deterrence	97
5.2.3 Solving for Endogeneity: Lagged Versus Instrumental Variables in Civil War Onset	100
5.3 Rational Choice: A Field Divided?	103
5.4 Conclusion	104
Discussion Questions	105
Further Reading	106
6 Constructivism	107
6.1 Constructivism Versus Rationalism	109
6.2 Constructivism and Meaning in the World	114
6.2.1 The Social Construction of States	115
6.2.2 The Social Construction of Power	117
6.2.3 The Social Construction of Interests	121
6.2.4 The Social Construction of Anarchy	124
6.3 Constructing International Security: Two Theories	125
6.3.1 Securitization Theory	126
6.3.2 Ontological Security	128
6.4 Conclusion	130
Discussion Questions	131
Further Reading	131

7	Critical Security Studies	133
7.1	Critical Security Studies	134
7.2	From Critical Constructivism to Critical Theory to a Critique of Security	137
7.3	Feminist Security Studies	140
7.4	Postcolonial and Non-Western Approaches to Security	145
7.5	Conclusion	152
	Discussion Questions	153
	Further Reading	153
8	Human Security	155
8.1	Emergence of Human Security	156
8.2	Human Security and Human Development	159
8.3	Human Security, State Sovereignty, and the Responsibility to Protect	161
8.4	Critique of Human Security	164
8.5	Conclusion	166
	Discussion Questions	166
	Further Reading	167
Part II The Traditional Security Agenda
9	Conventional War and Warfare	171
9.1	Defining War	173
9.2	Two Theorists on War: Clausewitz and Sun Tzu	175
9.2.1	Fundamental Aspects of Clausewitz's Theory	175
9.2.2	Fundamental Aspects of Sun Tzu's Theory of War	178
9.3	The Nation-State and War	179
9.4	Industrialization and Total War	182
9.4.1	The Railway and Total War	183
9.4.2	The Atomic Bomb: The End of Total War?	184
9.5	War in the Digital Age	184
9.6	Contemporary Strategy for Conventional War	186
9.6.1	Annihilation and Attrition	187
9.6.2	Denial and Dislocation	188
9.7	Conclusion	189
	Discussion Questions	190
	Further Reading	190
10	Irregular War and Warfare	191
10.1	Defining Irregular War	192
10.2	Two Theorists on Irregular War: T. E. Lawrence and Mao Zedong	195
10.3	Insurgencies and Wars of Decolonization	198

10.4	Coups d'état and Civil Wars	200
10.5	Hybrid Warfare, New Wars, and Other Nominal Conflicts	202
10.6	Contemporary Strategy for Countering Irregular Warfare	204
10.7	Conclusion	208
	Discussion Questions	209
	Further Reading	209
11	Security and International Law	210
11.1	Codification of the Laws of War and International Humanitarian Law	211
11.2	International Humanitarian Law and International Public Law	215
11.3	Applying International Humanitarian Law in Practice	217
11.4	The Search for Justice: From Ad Hoc Tribunals to the ICC	219
11.5	Beyond the State? Mercenaries, Private Military Companies, and the Law	221
11.6	Conclusion	227
	Discussion Questions	228
	Further Reading	229
12	The Architectures of Alignment: Alliances, Security Institutions, Coalitions, and Strategic Partnerships	230
12.1	The Characteristics of Strategic Alignment	232
12.2	Alliances	234
12.2.1	Alliance Formation: Why Do States Form Alliances?	235
12.2.2	Alliance Management: What Are the Problems that Must Be Managed?	237
12.2.3	Alliance Endurance: How Do Alliances End?	240
12.3	Security Institutions	243
12.3.1	Thin Security Institutions	245
12.3.2	Thick Security Institutions	248
12.4	Coalitions and Strategic Partnerships	249
12.5	Do Strategic Alignments Prevent Wars or Cause Them?	251
12.6	Do Strategic Alignments Help to Win Wars?	254
12.7	Conclusion	256
	Discussion Questions	257
	Further Reading	258
13	Weapons of Mass Destruction: Nuclear, Biological, and Chemical	259
13.1	The Science of Nuclear Weapons	261
13.2	Nuclear Weapons in the Cold War	261
13.3	Fundamentals of Nuclear Strategy	264
13.4	The End of the Cold War and US-Russian Nuclear Deterrence	266
13.5	Horizontal Nuclear Proliferation	268
13.6	Chemical Weapons	271

13.7 Biological Weapons	275
13.8 Conclusion	277
Discussion Questions	278
Further Reading	278
14 Political Violence and Terrorism	280
14.1 Defining Terrorism	281
14.2 Origins of Modern Terrorism	285
14.2.1 The Role of Ideology and Technology	285
14.2.2 The Role of Media	286
14.2.3 The Role of Advanced Weaponry	286
14.3 A Historical Overview: Waves and Beyond	287
14.3.1 The Anarchist Wave	287
14.3.2 The Anticolonial Wave	288
14.3.3 The New Left Wave	288
14.3.4 The Religious Wave	289
14.3.5 Waves or Strains?	290
14.4 Terrorism and Counterterrorism in the Twenty-First Century	292
14.5 Radicalization and Deradicalization	294
14.6 Counterterrorism and International Cooperation	296
14.7 Conclusion	298
Discussion Questions	298
Further Reading	299
Part III A Wider and Deeper Security Agenda
15 Cybersecurity and Cyberwar	303
15.1 The Foundations of Cyberspace	304
15.2 Cybersecurity and Insecurity	305
15.3 Cybercrime	308
15.4 Cyberwar	310
15.5 Cyberwar as Information Warfare	314
15.6 I, Warbot	316
15.7 Conclusion	316
Discussion Questions	317
Further Reading	317
16 Environmental Security	318
16.1 The Relationship Between the Environment and Security	319
16.1.1 Global Warming, Climate Change, and Conflict	320
16.1.2 The Environmental Security and Human Security Nexus	324
16.2 Humans, Civilization, and Environmental Security	325
16.3 The State and Environmental Security	327
16.3.1 How Do States Respond to Environmental Security Threats?	328

16.3.2	State Capacity and Climate Conflict	329
16.3.3	Authoritarianism and Climate Crises	330
16.3.4	Authoritarian Environmentalism	331
16.4	International Order and Environmental Security	332
16.4.1	International Aid and Climate Crises	334
16.4.2	Recent International Action on Environmental Security	335
16.4.3	Collective Action Challenges and Environmental Security	336
16.5	Conclusion	338
	Discussion Questions	340
	Further Reading	340
17	Energy Security	341
17.1	What Is Energy Security?	343
17.2	Energy Security in Theory: Cooperation or Conflict?	347
17.3	The Middle East as an Energy Supplier	349
17.4	Great Powers and the Energy Challenge	352
17.5	Conclusion	354
	Discussion Questions	355
	Further Reading	355
18	The Global Financial System and Economic Security	357
18.1	The Evolution of the International Economic System	358
18.1.1	The Bretton Woods System	359
18.1.2	The US Dollar and the Global Economy	361
18.2	The Relationship Between Economy and Security	363
18.2.1	Indigenous Economic Security	363
18.2.2	Instrumental Economic Security	364
18.2.3	Economic Insecurity	364
18.2.4	Economic Crime	365
18.3	Security Implications of Economic Crises	365
18.3.1	Financial Crises and National Security	366
18.3.2	Financial Integration and Crisis	367
18.4	Economic Interdependence and Trade Wars	368
18.5	Economic Statecraft: Economic Sanctions and Foreign Aid	373
18.5.1	Tactical Economic Measures: Sanctions	373
18.5.2	Strategic Economic Measures: Inducements	375
18.6	The Dark Side of the Global Economic Order	376
18.7	Conclusion	377
	Discussion Questions	378
	Further Reading	378
19	Global Public Health and Security	380
19.1	Health and Security: What Is the Connection?	381
19.2	Securitization of Global Public Health and Its Critics	382

19.3	Evolution of Global Health Governance	385
19.4	The 2005 International Health Regulations	388
19.5	Challenging Global Health Governance: The Indonesian Claim to Viral Sovereignty	389
19.6	Testing Global Health Governance, Yet Again: West African Ebola Outbreak	390
19.7	The Threat of Bioterrorism	393
19.8	Global Health Security Agenda	394
19.9	Lessons from the COVID-19 Pandemic	395
19.10	Conclusion	398
	Discussion Questions	398
	Further Reading	399
	Glossary	400
	References	419
	Index	438