

CONTENTS

Preface xiii

PART ONE

'A City on a Hill'

Colonial America, 1580–1750

Europe and the Transatlantic Adventure	3
Raleigh, the Proto-American, and the Roanoke Disaster	10
Jamestown: The First Permanent Foothold	23
Mayflower and the Formative Event	28
'The Natural Inheritance of the Elect Nation'	33
John Winthrop and His 'Little Speech' on Liberty	41
Roger Williams: The First Dissident	46
The Catholics in Maryland	55
The Primitive Structure of Colonial America	62
Carolina: The First Slave State	73
Cotton Mather and the End of the Puritan Utopia	81
Oglethorpe and Early Georgia	88
Why Colonial Control Did Not Work	90
The Rise of Philadelphia	96
Elected Assemblies versus the Governors	101
The Great Awakening and Its Political Impact	109

PART TWO

'That the Free Constitution Be Sacredly Maintained'

Revolutionary America, 1750–1815

George Washington and the War against France	121
Poor Quality of British Leadership	127

The Role of Benjamin Franklin	134
Thomas Jefferson and the Declaration of Independence	143
The Galvanizing Effect of Tom Paine	152
Washington, the War, and the Intervention of Europe	158
Patriots and Loyalists: America's First Civil War	171
The Constitutional Convention	177
The Ratification Debate	190
Citizenship, the Suffrage, and 'The Tyranny of the Majority'	198
The Role of Religion in the Constitution	204
The Presidency, Hamilton, and Public Finance	211
Success of Washington and His Farewell Address	222
John Adams and the European War	230
Central Importance of John Marshall	235
Jefferson's Ambivalent Rule and Character	241
The Louisiana Purchase	251
Madison's Blunders and Their Punishment	257
Andrew Jackson, the Deus Ex Machina	267
Jackson and the Destruction of the Indians	269

PART THREE

'A General Happy Mediocrity Prevails'

Democratic America, 1815-1850

High Birth-Rates and the Immigrant Flood	283
The Market in Cheap Land	290
Spread of the Religious Sects	296
Emergence of the South and King Cotton	307
The Missouri Compromise	316
Henry Clay	320
The Advent of Jacksonian Democracy	329
The War against the Bank	352
America's Agricultural Revolution	359
Revolution in Transportation and Communications	365
Polk and the Mexican War	372
De Tocqueville and the Emerging Supernation	389
The Ideology of the North-South Battle	399
Emerson and the Birth of an American Culture	403
Longfellow, Poe, and Hawthornian Psychology	408

PART FOUR

'The Almost Chosen People'

Civil War America, 1850-1870

- The Era of Pierce and Buchanan 424
- Ultimate and Proximate Causes of the Civil War 432
- The Rise of Lincoln 435
- Centrality of Preserving the Union 442
- The Election of 1860 446
- Jefferson Davis and Why the South Fought 450
- Why the South Was Virtually Bound to Lose 461
- The Churches and the War 469
- The War among the Generals 474
- Gettysburg: 'Too Bad! Too Bad! Oh! TOO BAD!' 479
- The Triumph and Tragedy of Lincoln 485
- Andrew Johnson and the Two Reconstructions 499

PART FIVE

Huddled Masses and Crosses of Gold

Industrial America, 1870-1912

- Modern America and Its Aging Process 511
- Mass-Immigration and 'Thinking Big' 512
- Indians and Settlers, Cowboys and Desperados 515
- The Significance of the Frontier 523
- Centrality of Railroads 532
- Did the Robber Barons Really Exist? 536
- Carnegie, Steel, and American Philanthropy 550
- Pierpoint Morgan and Wall Street 555
- Trusts and Anti-Trusts 560
- Monster Cities: Chicago and New York 569
- The Urban Rich and Poor 577
- American Science and Culture: Edison and Tiffany 579
- Church, Bierstadt, and the Limitless Landscape 585
- Bringing Luxury to the Masses 591
- The Rise of Labor and Muckraking 598
- Standard Oil and Henry Ford 602

Populism, Imperialism, and the Spanish–American War	607
Theodore Roosevelt and His Golden Age	614

PART SIX

‘The First International Nation’

Melting-Pot America, 1912–1929

The Significance of Woodrow Wilson	627
Education and the Class System	630
The Advent of Statism	634
Wilson’s Legislative Triumph	636
McAdoo and the Coming of War	639
The Disaster of Versailles and the League of Nations	648
Harding, ‘Normalcy,’ and Witch-Hunting	655
Women Stroll onto the Scene	656
Quotas and Internal Migration	660
The Harlem Phenomenon and Multiracial Culture	663
Fundamentalism and Middle America	671
Prohibition and Its Disastrous Consequences	674
San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Californian Extremism	683
Cheap Electricity and Its Dramatic Impact	689
Hollywood	690
The Social and Moral Significance of Jazz	697
Race Prejudice, Popular Entertainment, and Downward Mobility	703
Harding and Historical Deconstruction	707
The Age of Coolidge and Government Minimalism	712
Twenties Cultural and Economic Prosperity	717

PART SEVEN

‘Nothing to Fear But Fear Itself’

Superpower America, 1929–1960

Government Credit-Management and the Wall Street Crash	727
Why the Depression Was So Deep and Long-Lasting	735
The Failure of the Great Engineer	739
Roosevelt and the Election of 1932	747

The Mythology of the New Deal	752
FDR, Big Business, and the Intellectuals	758
Transforming the Democrats into the Majority Party	763
US Isolationism and Internationalism	768
Roosevelt, the Nazis, and Japan	777
America in the War; the Miracle in Production	780
FDR, Stalin, and Soviet Advances	788
The Rise of Truman and the Cold War	792
Nuclear Weapons and the Defeat of Japan	799
The Truman Doctrine, Marshall Aid, and Nato	804
America and the Birth of Israel	818
The Korean War and the Fall of MacArthur	821
Eisenhower, McCarthyism, and Pop Sociology	826
Piety on the Potomac	839

PART EIGHT

‘We Will Pay Any Price, Bear Any Burden’

Problem-Solving, Problem-Creating America, 1960–1997

The Radical Shift in the Media	845
Joe Kennedy and His Crown Prince	848
The 1960 Election and the Myth of Camelot	852
The Space Race	858
The Bay of Pigs and the Missile Crisis	859
Lyndon Johnson and His Great Society	869
Getting into the Vietnam Quagmire	877
Nixon and His Silent Majority	887
Civil Rights and Campus Violence	891
Watergate and the Putsch against the Executive	897
Congressional Rule and America’s Nadir	904
Carter, the 1980 Watershed, and Reaganism	910
Rearmament and the Collapse of Soviet Power	926
The Bush Interlude and Clintonian Corruption	931
Fin-de-Siècle America and Its Whims	940
Wyeth and the Significance of the Realist Revival	945
Judicial Aggression and the Litigational Society	947
The Sinister Legacy of Myrdal	952

Language, Abortion, and Crime	959
Family Collapse and Religious Persecution	967
The Triumph of Women	972

Source Notes	977
--------------	-----

Index	1061
-------	------