

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Prologue	x
Part I American Philosophies of Resistance	1
1 Introduction	3
2 Defining Pluralism: Simon Pokagon, Ida B. Wells-Barnett, and T. Thomas Fortune	13
3 Evolution and American Indian Philosophy	21
4 Feminist Resistance: Margaret Fuller, Anna Julia Cooper, Jane Addams, and Charlotte Perkins Gilman	29
5 Transcendental Origins: Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau	41
6 Labor, Empire, Populism, and the Social Gospel: Washington Gladden, Walter Rauschenbusch, and Jane Addams	53
7 A New Name for an Old Way of Thinking: William James	69
8 Making Ideas Clear: Charles Sanders Peirce	77
9 The Beloved Community and Its Discontents: Josiah Royce and the Realists	85
10 War, Anarchism, and Sex: Emma Goldman and Margaret Sanger	93
11 Democracy and Social Ethics: John Dewey	101
Part II Resistance and Transition	115
12 Naturalism and Idealism, Fear and Conventionality: Mary Whiton Calkins and Elsie Clews Parsons	117
13 Race Riots and the Color Line: W. E. B. Du Bois	131
14 Creative Experience: Mary Parker Follett	141

15	Cultural Pluralism: Horace Kallen and Alain Leroy Locke	153
16	War and the Rise of Logical Positivism	163
17	Analytic Philosophy and the Pluralist Revolt	181
Part III Social Revolutions		197
18	Civil Rights: Martin Luther King, Jr., Richard Wright, and James Baldwin	199
19	Black Power: Malcolm X, James Cone, Audre Lorde, Bell Hooks, Angela Davis, and Cornel West	211
20	Latin America	227
21	Red Power, Indigenous Philosophy: Vine Deloria, Jr., and Contemporary American Indian Thought	247
22	Feminist Philosophy and Practice	267
23	Engaged Philosophy and the Environment: John Muir, Aldo Leopold, Joseph Wood Krutch, Rachel Carson, and Contemporary Environmental Pragmatism	289
Part IV Democratic Futures?		309
24	Recovery and Revitalization of the American Tradition	311
25	American Philosophy and "the Culture Wars"	335
26	American Philosophy for the Future	349
Epilogue		373
Bibliography		381
Index		407