

Contents

Volume I

Preface	1
Introduction	3
Part I
1. Commodities and Exchange	17
2. Money	57
Part II
3. From Capital to Labor Power	87
Part III
4. The Labor Process and the Production of Surplus Value	111
5. The Working Day	137
Part IV
6. Relative Surplus-Value	165
7. What Technology Reveals	191
8. Machinery and Large-Scale Industry	215
Part V–VIII
9. From Absolute and Relative Surplus-Value to the Accumulation of Capital	239
10. Capitalist Accumulation	265
11. The Secret of Primitive Accumulation	291
Reflections and Prognoses	317

Volume II

A Note on the Texts Used	349
Introduction	351
1. The Circuits of Capital Chapters 1–3 of Capital, Volume II	387
2. The Three Figures of the Circuit and the Continuity of Capital Flow Chapters 4–6 of Capital, Volume II	417
3. The Question of Fixed Capital Chapters 7–11 of Capital, Volume II	459
4. Merchants' Capital Chapters 16–20 of Capital, Volume III	493
5. Interest, Credit and Finance Chapters 21–26 of Capital, Volume III	521
6. Marx's Views on the Credit System Chapters 27–37 of Capital, Volume III	557
7. The Role of Credit and the Banking System Chapters 27 Onwards in Capital, Volume III	581
8. The Time and Space of Capital Chapters 12–14 of Capital, Volume II	617
9. Circulation and Turnover Times Chapters 15–17 of Capital, Volume II	637
10. The Reproduction of Capital Chapters 18–20 of Capital, Volume II	663
11. The Problem of Fixed Capital and Expanded Reproduction Chapters 20 and 21 of Capital, Volume II	701
12. Reflections	729
Index	745