

Contents

Acknowledgements	xiii
Foreword: Setting the Scene	xv
Foreword: Eric Cornuel	xvii
1. Introduction: EFMD's Journey in Management Education	1
1.1. Is There a Distinctive, European Management Model?	3
1.2. The Approach Taken in this Volume	5
2. A Brief Overview of the Emergence and Evolution of Management Education and the Business School	9
2.1. Introduction	9
2.2. The Evolution of Management Education and the 'Business School' Concept	10
2.3. Criticisms of Business Schools	15
2.4. Are There Persistent Problems in Management Education?	17
3. The History and Timeline (1971–2012) of EFMD's Growth: EFMD's Role in the Growth of Management Education	19
3.1. Introduction	19
3.2. The Timelines and Achievements in EFMD's History	20
3.3. What Were the Challenges for Management Education Identified in the 1996 Volume? What Roles Were Suggested for EFMD's Future?	27
3.3.1. Embracing the Ideas and Principles of a Liberal Education	27
3.3.2. A New Era of Innovation and Change	28
3.3.3. Competition, the Pace of Change and Increasing Stakeholder Pressure	28

3.3.4. The Challenge of Globalisation and the Importance of European Models of Management Education	29
3.3.5. Recognising the Realities of Strategic Growth and Change	29
3.3.6. Adapting Curricula to the Realities of Growth and Societal/Stakeholder Perspectives	30
3.3.7. The Possibility That Inertia and Complacency May Create Failure for Business Schools	31
3.4. What Have Been the Key Challenges and Themes About Management Education in the Media?	31
3.4.1. Media Highlights of Management Education and Business Schools (1990s–Present)	31
3.4.2. Media Highlights on Management Education and Business Schools (1990–2011): Overview of the Main Themes	33
3.5. What Are the Ongoing Challenges and Themes Identified by Our Research Interviewees?	42
3.5.1. Role, and Perception, of Management Education in Society	42
3.5.1.1. The Perceived Value of Management Education/Programme Homogeneity	44
3.5.1.2. What is Management About?	44
3.5.1.3. The Holistic Nature of Management	45
3.5.1.4. The Nature of Leadership	47
3.5.1.5. The Pressure of Stakeholders	47
3.5.1.6. The Influence of Crisis	48
3.5.1.7. Moral and Ethical Perspectives	48
3.5.1.8. The Role and Value of Research	49
3.5.1.9. Rigour/Relevance	49
3.5.1.10. Impact of Management Education	50
3.5.1.11. Link/Balance to Practice	50
3.5.2. External Conditions Confronting the Management Education Industry	51
3.5.2.1. Globalisation	51
3.5.2.2. Competition	52
3.5.3. Internal Conditions Confronting the Management Education Industry	53
3.5.3.1. Role of Faculty	53
3.5.3.2. Funding and Revenue Models	54
3.5.3.3. New Models of Management Education	55
3.5.4. Summary and Conclusions	57

4. The Key Stakeholders in Management Education	59
4.1. Who Are the Most Important Stakeholders in Management Education?	59
4.2. Who Do You Consider the Key Stakeholders in Management Education?	59
4.3. Should Students Be Key Stakeholders?	61
4.4. Distinguishing Between Types of Students Reveals Different Perceptions of the Relative Importance of Key Stakeholders	64
4.5. Which Stakeholders Have Had the Greatest Influence on Management Education Over the Last 20 Years?	65
4.6. Influence Over Management Education as a Supply-Driven Phenomenon	68
4.7. Influence Over Management Education as a Demand-Driven Phenomenon	69
4.8. Other External Influences	70
4.9. What Do You See as the Role of Your Stakeholder Group in Management Education?	72
4.10. Media	72
4.11. Business	73
4.11.1. The Issue of Translation	73
4.11.2. Problem Diagnosis	74
4.11.3. Integrating Translation and Problem Diagnosis	75
4.12. Professional/Trade Bodies	76
4.13. Academics	78
4.14. Summary and Conclusions	81
5. Further Perspectives: What Have Been the Key Events and Innovations in the Evolution of Management Education?	87
5.1. Introduction	87
5.2. What Are the Most Important Events in Management Education over the Last 20 Years?	87
5.2.1. Globalisation	89
5.2.2. Competition/Competitive Dynamics of Management Education (Including Privatisation)	91
5.2.3. Emergence of a European Identity: European Competition in Management Education	93
5.2.4. Accreditation and Professionalisation of the Sector	93
5.2.5. Rankings	94
5.2.6. Exogenous Shocks	95
5.2.7. Technology and Information	96
5.2.8. Other Responses	97
5.3. What Led to the Emergence of these Significant Events in Management Education?	98

5.3.1. Globalisation	99
5.3.2. Exogenous Shocks	100
5.3.3. Technology and Information	100
5.3.4. Funding, Political Change and Privatisation	101
5.3.5. Reputation of Management Education (Rankings and Accreditation)	102
5.4. Summary and Conclusions	103
5.5. Identifying the Most Significant Events	103
6. Opinion Leaders, Distinctly Different Schools and Innovations in Management Education	105
6.1. Introduction	105
6.1.1. Which Individuals Have Had the Greatest Influence on Management Education?	105
6.1.2. Which Business Schools or Organisations Have Had the Greatest Influence on Management Education?	108
6.1.3. Which Business Schools Are Distinctly Different?	110
6.1.4. What Have Been the Major Innovations in Management Education Over the Last 20 Years?	113
6.2. Summary and Conclusions	116
7. The Main Issues in Management Education: What Are the Lessons Learned and Not Learned from the Past?	119
7.1. Introduction	119
7.2. The Main Issues in Management Education	119
7.2.1. Globalisation	122
7.2.2. Relationship with Universities	122
7.2.3. Role of Research	123
7.2.4. Disciplinary Silos	124
7.2.5. Scandals	125
7.2.6. Growth of Management Education	126
7.2.6.1. Growth in China	126
7.2.6.2. With Growth Comes Competition	126
7.2.7. Competition	127
7.2.8. Curriculum	127
7.2.9. Theory/Practice and the Role of Business Schools	127
7.2.10. Rankings	128
7.3. What Led to Their Emergence as Key Issues?	129
7.4. What Lessons Can be Learned from the Past?	135
7.4.1. Purpose/Mission	137
7.4.2. Knowledge Production	138
7.4.3. Knowledge Consumption	139
7.4.4. Structure	140

7.5. What Lessons Have Not Been Learned?	143
7.5.1. Mission/Purpose of Management Education	143
7.5.2. Knowledge Production and Relevance	144
7.5.3. Knowledge Production, Technology and Innovation	145
7.5.4. Knowledge Consumption: At What Stage of Management Development Is Management Education Appropriate for Students?	145
7.5.5. Knowledge Consumption: What Exactly Is the Content of Management Education and What Is It For?	146
7.5.6. Knowledge Consumption: Impact	147
7.5.7. Structure and Knowledge Consumption: The Effects of Silos	147
7.5.8. Structural: The Power of Faculty	148
8. Change in Management Education: What Are the Barriers to Change in Management Education and Triggers for Change in the Future?	149
8.1. Introduction	149
8.2. What Issues Are Seen as ‘Barriers to Change’?	149
8.2.1. The University System	151
8.2.2. Faculty	152
8.2.3. Promotion and Tenure	153
8.2.4. Leadership	153
8.2.5. Accreditation	155
8.2.6. Lack of Resources	155
8.3. What Is Likely to Trigger Change in the Future?	156
8.3.1. Funding and Sustainability	157
8.3.2. Competition Within the Industry	158
8.3.3. Faculty-Related Triggers	159
8.3.4. Exogenous Shocks	161
8.3.5. Technology and Innovation	162
8.3.6. Leadership	162
8.4. Can We Change Management Education?	163
References	165
Appendix	167
Afterword: The Past and Changes Needed in the Future	169