

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Introduction: Entanglements in cultural history Willemijn Ruberg	1
1 Environment	25
1.1 Knowledge of nature: Drawing the line between the human and the natural Mette Bruinsma, Richard Calis and Flora Roberts	27
1.2 Dealing with petrocultural legacies and histories otherwise: Definitions and directions for cultural history and heritage Nélia Dias, Rodney Harrison, Gertjan Plets and Colin Sterling	49
2 The digital and ‘post-truth’	67
2.1 The history of digital cultures Jochen Hung and Briana J. Smith	69
2.2 Digital archives, historical infrastructures Pim Huijnen, Manjusha Kuruppath and Dirk van Miert	89
2.3 Historical facts as products of networks: A new direction in the history of history Pieter Huistra and Rutger van der Hoeven	109
3 Embodiment	129
3.1 Feeling human: Emotion, experience and disability in cultural history Nathanje Dijkstra, Josephine Hoegaerts and Elwin Hofman	131
3.2 Bodies that matter: New directions in the history of the body Pauline Dirven, Danielle Kinsey and Willemijn Ruberg	149
4 Labour and population	167
4.1 Population and reproduction: Research vistas from Europe’s peripheries Agata Ignaciuk and Kateřina Lišková	169

4.2	The cultural history of work and the identity of labour Ido de Haan, James Kennedy and Jeroen Koch	187
5	Towards decolonial cultural history	209
5.1	Finding the decolonial in cultural history Giti Chandra, Rachel Gillett and Angela Wanhalla	211
5.2	Contesting imperial pasts: Arts, scholarship and activism Julie Deschepper, Grace Leksana, Britta Schilling and Renée Vulto	233
	Afterword: Looking back, moving forward. Reflections on the field of cultural history Jan Bant, Caroline Kreysel and Suzanne Ros	255
	Index	263