Detailed table of contents

List of figures and tables xix

Preface xx

List of abbreviations xxi

Glossary xxiv

Table of cases xxvi

Table of treaties and declarations xlii

1 Introduction 1
1.1 Defining international law 1
1.2 International law as law 4
1.3 Characteristics of international law 8
1.4 The theory of sovereignty and obligation 10
1.5 Newer developments in theory 12
1.6 The study of international law 16
1.7 Conclusion 17

2 History 19
2.1 Ancient period 19
2.2 The middle ages to the peace of Westphalia 20
2.3 The nineteenth century: balance of powers and the Congress system 21
2.4 Colonisation and relations between European and non-European powers 22
2.5 The Western hemisphere 25
2.6 Developments after the First World War 26
2.7 The League of Nations and its failure 26
2.8 Developments after the Second World War 27
2.9 Decolonisation and changes in the composition of the international community 28
2.10 Attitudes of Third World States towards international law 29
2.11 Rule of law, multilateral institutions, and unilateralism 29
2.12 Conclusion 32

3 Sources of international law 33
3.1 General concept 33
3.2 Treaties 35
3.3 Custom 36
3.3.1 Basic elements 36
3.3.2 The range of relevant acts and practice 39
3.3.3 The psychological element in the formation of customary law (opinio juris) 44
3.3.4 Multilateral evidence of customary law 45
3.4 General principles of law 49
3.5 Judicial decisions 50
3.6 Learned writers 51
3.7 "Soft" law 52
3.8 Equity 53
3.9 The hierarchy of norms and sources 54
3.10 Jus cogens 56
3.11 Codification and the progressive development of international law 59

4 International law and municipal law 62
4.1 Dualist and monist theories 62
4.2 The attitude of international law to municipal law 63
4.3 The attitude of national legal systems to international law 65
4.3.1 Treaties 66
4.3.2 General (customary) international law 71
4.4 Public international law and private international law 74
4.5 Act of State, justiciability 75
4.6 Conclusion 77

5 Creation and recognition of States 78
5.1 States 78
5.2 Factual elements of statehood 79
5.2.1 Territory 79
5.2.2 Population 81
5.2.3 Government 82
5.3 Independence 83
5.3.1 General concept 83
5.3.2 Attainment of independence 84
5.3.3 Alienation of independence 86
5.4 Territorial units within States (especially federal States) 89
5.5 Legal requirements for statehood 90
5.5.1 Secession, separation, dissolution 90
5.5.2 Public order limits on State creation 92
5.5.3 The primacy of entitlement over effectiveness 92
5.6 Identity and continuity of States 96

5.6.1 General concept 96
5.6.2 Germany 97
5.6.3 Vietnam 99
5.6.4 China and Taiwan 100
5.6.5 North and South Korea 102
5.6.6 The SFRY and its successors 103
5.6.7 Evaluation 104
5.7 Recognition of States and governments in international law 105
5.7.1 The basic concept 105
5.7.2 The effect of recognition of States by other States 105
5.7.3 Policies of not recognising and the duty not to recognise 108
5.7.4 Conditional recognition 109
5.7.5 The legal consequences of recognition of States 109
5.7.6 Recognition of governments 111
5.7.7 De jure and de facto recognition of States and governments 115
5.8 Conclusion 120

6 Legal personality of non-State entities 121
6.1 The essence of legal personality 121
6.2 International organisations 122
6.2.1 Basis for legal personality 122
6.2.2 Scope of legal powers and functionality 123
6.2.3 The notion of "supranationality" 125
6.3 Belligerents and insurgents 126
6.3.1 National liberation movements 127
6.4 Other relevant international entities 128
6.5 Individuals, companies, and non-governmental organisations 128
6.5.1 Individuals and companies 128
6.5.2 Non-governmental organisations (NGOs) 130
6.6 Conclusion 131

7 Territory 132
7.1 The meaning of territorial sovereignty 132
7.2 Territorial relations not conferring or altering sovereignty 133
7.3 Principles regulating the determination of territorial sovereignty 136
7.3.1 Immemorial possession 136
7.3.2 Uti possidetis juris 136
7.3.3 Claims of territorial unity and contiguity 138
7.4 Modes of acquisition of territory 139
7.4.1 Title to territory: basic concept 139
7.4.2 Cession and treaty titles 141
7.4.3 Occupation 145
7.4.4 Effective display of State authority (effectivités) 148
7.4.5 Prescription 151
7.4.6 Acquiescence, recognition, and estoppel 153

7.4.7 Dereliction and waiver 155
7.4.8 Polar regions and Antarctica 155
7.4.9 Operations of nature 156
7.4.10 Adjudication 157
7.4.11 Conquest 157
7.5 Remaining matters relevant in litigating territorial disputes 160
7.5.1 Evidence of title to territory (including maps) 160
7.5.2 Critical date 161
7.5.3 Inter-temporal law 161
7.6 Boundaries 162
7.7 Boundary rivers 164
7.8 Servitudes 165
7.9 Forms and ways of joint utilisation of transboundary watercourses 167
7.10 Conclusion 169

8 The law of the sea 171
8.1 Development of the law of the sea 171
8.2 The nature of rules and regimes under UNCLOS 173
8.2.1 Bilateralism and derogations from the multilateral regime 173
8.2.2 Preferential and historic rights 174
8.3 Land factors and sea factors 176
8.3.1 The status of a coastal State 176
8.3.2 Islands, rocks, and low-tide elevations 177
8.3.3 Coasts 179
8.3.4 Archipelagos 181
8.4 Internal waters 182
8.5 Territorial sea 183
8.5.1 Rights of the coastal State 183
8.5.2 The right of innocent passage 184
8.5.3 The width of the territorial sea 186
8.5.4 The line from which the territorial sea is measured 188
8.6 The contiguous zone 190
8.7 Exclusive fishery zones and exclusive economic zones 190
8.8 The continental shelf: development of the basic concept 192
8.9 Maritime boundaries 193
8.9.1 Normative framework 193
8.9.2 Basis for, and nature of, the entitlement to a maritime space 195
8.9.3 Single delimitation of the continental shelf and exclusive economic zone 198
8.9.4 Content and elements of equitable delimitation 199
8.9.5 Land territory in contested maritime areas 206
8.9.6 Continental shelf beyond 200 nautical miles 207
8.9.7 Evaluation 209
8.10 The high seas 209

8.10.1 The calculus of the rights of States 209
8.10.2 Interference with ships on the high seas 211
8.11 Enclosed or semi-enclosed seas 214
8.12 The deep seabed 215

9 Airspace and outer space 218
9.1 Airspace 218
9.1.1 Access to and overflight of national airspace 218
9.1.2 Regulation of flights 222
9.2 Outer space 225
9.2.1 Basic rules and instruments 225
9.2.2 Assertion and development of State rights 227
9.2.3 Treaty mechanisms of State cooperation 230
9.3 The "common heritage of mankind" principle 231

10 State jurisdiction 233
10.1 Concept of jurisdiction 233
10.2 The essence of jurisdiction of national courts 236
10.2.1 General characteristics 236
10.2.2 Territorial principle and extraterritoriality 239
10.2.3 The nationality principle (active and passive) 240
10.2.4 The protective principle 241
10.2.5 Effects jurisdiction 241
10.2.6 The universality principle 243
10.2.7 The universal civil jurisdiction of national courts over human rights violations 246
10.3 Extradition 248

11 Immunity from jurisdiction 251
11.1 Basic concepts 251
11.2 Sovereign (or State) immunity: scope and sources of law 252
11.3 State immunity and the hierarchy of norms 259
11.4 Entities and persons entitled to immunity 260
11.4.1 The State and its subdivisions 260
11.4.2 Property interest and indirect impleading 261
11.4.3 State officials: immunity ratione materiae 262
11.4.4 State officials: immunity ratione personae 264
11.5 Immunity from execution and attachment of State property 265
11.6 Diplomatic relations, diplomatic immunity, and consular relations 266
11.6.1 Conduct of diplomatic relations 266
11.6.2 Diplomatic immunity from the jurisdiction of courts 268
11.6.3 Other diplomatic privileges and immunities 270
11.6.4 Consular relations and consular immunity 272
11.7 Immunities of international organisations 272
11.8 Waiver of immunity 274

12 Law of treaties 276
12.1 The concept of a treaty 277
12.2 Conclusion and entry into force of treaties 281
12.2.1 Drafting of a treaty 281
12.2.2 Consent to be bound by a treaty 281
12.2.3 Entry into force; rights and obligations before entry into force 283
12.2.4 Registration 284
12.3 Reservations to treaties 284
12.4 Application of treaties (ratione loci, temporis, personae) 290
12.4.1 Territorial scope (ratione loci) 290
12.4.2 Temporal scope (ratione temporis) 291
12.4.3 Treaties and third States (ratione personae) 291
12.5 The interpretation of treaties 291
12.6 Application of successive treaties relating to the same subject matter 293
12.7 Invalidity and termination of treaties 294
12.7.1 Grounds of invalidity 294
12.7.2 Competence to conclude treaties under municipal law and its effect on the validity of treaties 294
12.7.3 Termination of treaties 296
12.8 Consequences of invalidity or termination of a treaty 301
12.8.1 The consequences of invalidity of a treaty; void and voidable treaties 301
12.8.2 The consequences of termination of a treaty 302
12.8.3 The effect of outbreak of war or hostilities on a treaty 303

13 State responsibility 305
13.1 Introduction 305
13.1.1 The work of the International Law Commission (ILC) 305
13.1.2 Basic concepts of responsibility and liability 306
13.1.3 General law of responsibility and "self-contained regimes" 307
13.1.4 The doctrine of "abuse of rights" 308
13.2 Basis and attribution of State responsibility 310
13.3 Responsibility of a State owing it its presence in, or control of, another State's territory 315
13.4 Action directed or controlled by the State 316
13.5 Aid and assistance 318
13.6 Circumstances precluding wrongfulness (defences) 320
13.7 Consequences of an internationally wrongful act 323
13.7.1 The injured state and reparation 323
13.7.2 Countermeasures 326
13.8 Responsibility for the acts of international organisations 327

14 State succession 329
14.1 Attempts of codification on State succession 329
14.2 The contested basic concept of State succession: "automatic succession" or a "clean slate"? 330
14.3 Differentials shaping or affecting State succession 332
14.3.1 Identity and continuity of States 332
14.3.2 Legality of territorial changes 334
14.3.3 The effect of notification and date of succession 335
14.3.4 Succession versus voluntary transmission of international obligations 336
14.4 Succession to treaties 338
14.4.1 The principle of "moving treaty boundaries" 338
14.4.2 Dissolution and unification of States 339
14.4.3 Automatic succession: human rights treaties 342
14.5 Membership in international organisations 345
14.6 International claims and State responsibility 348
14.7 Nationality 349
14.8 The treatment of property and contractual rights on succession 350
14.8.1 "Acquired rights" and private property 350
14.8.2 Public property 352
14.8.3 Contractual rights 352
14.8.4 Debts 353
14.9 Boundaries and other rights over territory 354
14.10 Conclusion 357

15 Protected persons and entities: nationality and individual rights 358
15.1 The essence of individual rights 358
15.2 Nationality 360
15.2.1 The concept of nationality 360
15.2.2 The initial State prerogative and its limits 361
15.2.3 Methods of acquisition and conferral of nationality 363
15.2.4 Loss of nationality 364
15.2.5 Dual or multiple nationality 366
15.2.6 International law limitations on the deprivation of nationality 366
15.2.7 Contestation of nationality decisions in relations between States 367
15.2.8 Statelessness 370
15.3 Rights of aliens regarding entry to, remaining in, and expulsion from a State 370
15.4 Treatment of foreign investment 372
15.4.1 Admission of foreign investments 372
15.4.2 The doctrine of "acquired rights" 373
15.4.3 International minimum standard 374

15.4.4 MFN clauses and national treatment 376
15.4.5 The concept of expropriation 377
15.4.6 Disguised expropriation 378
15.4.7 Calculation of compensation for expropriation 380
15.4.8 Expropriation of contractual rights 381
15.4.9 "Fair and equitable treatment" 382
15.4.10 "Full protection and security" 383

16 Protected persons and entities: human rights, group rights, and self-determination 385
16.1 Human rights: the basic concept 385
16.2 The United Nations human rights system 387
16.3 Regional human rights treaties 389
16.4 "Generations" of human rights; progressive realisation of rights 390
16.5 The standards of protection under international human rights law 392
16.5.1 General obligations under human rights treaties 392
16.5.2 Extraterritorial applicability of human rights treaties 393
16.5.3 Absolute and relative rights 395
16.5.4 Emergency derogations 397
16.5.5 The doctrine of equivalent protection 398
16.5.6 Overlapping and complementary protection: refugee rights and human rights 399
16.6 Group rights and non-discrimination 402
16.6.1 The essence of a "group" 402
16.6.2 Non-discrimination 403
16.7 Minorities and indigenous peoples 405
16.7.1 Minorities 405
16.7.2 Indigenous peoples 407
16.8 Self-determination 409
16.8.1 Entities entitled to self-determination 409
16.8.2 Colonial and non-colonial contexts 411
16.8.3 General law and unilateral claim or concession 412
16.8.4 Legal entitlement and processes of political transition 414
16.8.5 "Internal" and "external" self-determination 416
16.8.6 Impediments to the exercise of the right to self-determination 417
16.9 Permanent sovereignty over natural resources 418

17 Protection of the environment 421
17.1 The scope and nature of international environmental law 421
17.2 The nature of rules and regimes 422
17.3 Bilateralism and community interest 423
17.4 Basic features of principal treaty instruments on environmental protection 425

17.4.1 General overview 425
17.4.2 The convention on climate change, Kyoto protocol and Paris agreement 427
17.4.3 The 1972 biodiversity convention 429
17.4.4 Pollution of the seas 430
17.4.5 Hazardous waste 431
17.4.6 Other treaty regimes 432
17.5 Customary law and general principles of environmental law 433
17.5.1 General principles of State conduct and liability 433
17.5.2 General duty of prevention 434
17.5.3 Sustainable development 437
17.5.4 Precautionary principle 438
17.5.5 "Polluter pays" 440
17.5.6 Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) 440
17.6 Interaction of environmental law with other areas of international law 441
17.7 Conclusion 447

18 International economic relations 448
18.1 Mapping the area 448
18.2 The meaning of free trade 450
18.3 The WTO and international trade system 453
18.3.1 General framework 453
18.3.2 The GATT and other trade agreements on goods 454
18.3.3 The agreement on services (GATS) 459
18.3.4 The agreement on intellectual property rights (TRIPS) 460
18.3.5 Exceptions and waivers in the WTO system 460
18.4 The framework for international financial organisations 466
18.4.1 The International Monetary Fund (IMF): institutional background 466
18.4.2 The reduced relevance of legal requirements for financial transactions 468
18.4.3 The Fund's supervision of members' compliance with its Articles of Agreement 468
18.4.4 The World Bank 473

19 International criminal justice 475
19.1 Individual international criminal responsibility: the basic concept 475
19.2 National prosecution 477
19.3 Prosecution before ad hoc and special international tribunals 480
19.3.1 Nuremberg and Tokyo Tribunals 480
19.3.2 The international criminal tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda 481
19.3.3 Special Court for Sierra Leone 484
19.3.4 Special Tribunal for Lebanon 486

19.4 International Criminal Court 486
19.4.1 Establishment and jurisdiction 486
19.4.2 Admissibility of cases and complementarity 488
19.5 Immunity of State officials before international criminal tribunals 490
19.6 Conclusion 493

20 Use of force 495
20.1 Lawful and unlawful wars: developments before 1945 495
20.2 The prohibition of the use of force in the United Nations Charter 497
20.2.1 General scope 497
20.2.2 Territorial claims and disputes 499
20.2.3 Armed protection of nationals abroad 499
20.2.4 Armed reprisals 500
20.3 Self-defence 502
20.3.1 Basic scope of the right 502
20.3.2 Self-defence against attacks on ships and aircraft 504
20.3.3 Attacks carried out by non-State actors 505
20.3.4 Necessity and proportionality 508
20.3.5 Collective self-defence 509
20.4 Civil wars 510
20.5 Intervention by invitation 512
20.6 "Humanitarian intervention" 515
20.7 Conclusion 517

21 Laws applicable to war and armed conflict 518
21.1 Sources and development of humanitarian law 519
21.2 Concept of war and armed conflict 521
21.3 The applicability of international humanitarian law 522
21.3.1 General aspects 522
21.3.2 Laws of war and aggressor discrimination 523
21.3.3 Interaction of humanitarian law with human rights norms 524
21.4 Classification of conflicts; civil wars 525
21.5 Wars of national liberation 531
21.6 Belligerent rights 533
21.7 Combatants and protected persons under IHL and human rights law 535
21.8 Lawful and unlawful means of waging war 538
21.9 The principle of distinction 541
21.10 Nuclear weapons 543
21.11 Belligerent occupation 545
21.12 The law of neutrality and economic uses of maritime warfare 549
21.13 Reprisals 552

22 The United Nations and peace and security 554
22.1 The normative foundations of the United Nations 554
22.2 Membership 556

22.3 The Security Council 557
22.4 The General Assembly 560
22.5 Overlapping competence of the Security Council and the General Assembly 561
22.6 Pacific settlement of disputes under the United Nations Charter (Chapter VI) 562
22.7 The statutory basis and requirements for collective security and enforcement action under Chapter VII 563
22.8 The practice of the UN with regard to Chapter VII enforcement 566
22.8.1 Rhodesia and South Africa 566
22.8.2 The invasion of Kuwait by Iraq 567
22.8.3 The Kurdish crisis and the 2003 Iraq invasion 569
22.8.4 Somalia 570
22.8.5 Rwanda 572
22.8.6 Haiti 573
22.8.7 Former Yugoslavia 574
22.8.8 Libya 576
22.9 Other security council action under Chapter VII and its effects 577
22.9.1 Post-conflict governance 577
22.9.2 The scope and impact of economic sanctions 577
22.9.3 Targeted sanctions and interference with individuals' rights 578
22.9.4 Piracy and migrant smuggling 579
22.10 UN peacekeeping 580
22.10.1 The basic concept of peacekeeping and its evolution within the UN Charter framework 580
22.10.2 The first United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East (UNEF) 581
22.10.3 The United Nations force in the Congo (ONUC) 583
22.10.4 The United Nations force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) 584
22.10.5 Subsequent forces in the Middle East 585
22.11 Conclusion 586

23 Settlement of disputes 587
23.1 General background 587
23.2 Diplomatic methods of dispute settlement 588
23.2.1 Negotiations 588
23.2.2 Good offices and mediation 589
23.2.3 Fact-finding and inquiry 590
23.2.4 Conciliation 591
23.3 The International Court of justice 592
23.3.1 Composition and procedure 592
23.3.2 Jurisdiction in contentious cases; compromissory clauses 593
23.3.3 Jurisdiction under the Optional Clause 596
23.3.4 Provisional measures 598
23.3.5 Advisory opinions 600
23.4 Arbitration 601

23.5 Special tribunals for settling international disputes 602
23.5.1 The Iran–United States Claims Tribunal 602
23.5.2 Adjudication within the WTO system 604
23.5.3 Dispute settlement under human rights treaties 605
23.5.4 Settlement of disputes under UNCLOS 606
23.6 Admissibility of claims before international tribunals 608
23.6.1 Nationality of claims 608
23.6.2 Exhaustion of local remedies 611
23.6.3 The indispensable party doctrine (the Monetary Gold principle) 615
23.7 Applicable law 616
23.8 Binding force, interpretation, and revision of judgments 619

Index 621