Contents

About the Author ix

Introduction xi
- Definitions of social media: the role of Web 2.0 xii
- The development of social media xiii
- Social media in healthcare information: why now? xiv
- The use of social media by information professionals xv
- Social media during the COVID-19 pandemic xv
- Social media: underlying core principles for librarians xv
- How this book is structured xvi
- The future of social media in healthcare xvii

1 The Internet: The Story So Far 1
- The evolution of the internet 1
- The coming of the smartphone 5

2 What is Social Media? 9
- Introduction 9
- Web 1.0 to Web 3.0 10
- Web 2.0 and social media 10
- Defining social media 11
- The rise of the social network 12
- Common characteristics of social media platforms and sites 13
- The uses of social media 15
- Case study: the lost land of GeoCities 16
- Librarians and the adoption of social media 17

3 Social Media in Healthcare Settings 19
- What is healthcare information? 19
- Web 2.0 and Health Librarian 2.0 20
- Where do healthcare information professionals work? 21
- The adoption of social media by healthcare librarians 22
- The most common areas for social media in healthcare 23
- Healthcare information wikis 24
- Mobile devices in healthcare information 25

How trustworthy is online healthcare information? 26
Incorporating social media into workflows 26
How healthcare librarians use social media 27
Social media in healthcare information: benefits and risks 28
Patients, patient data and social media 29
Social media platforms commonly used in healthcare 29
Successful social media campaigns in healthcare 33
Demonstrating impact 34
Demographic preferences of social media use and the implications for librarians 34

4 Social Media in Healthcare Research 39
Introduction 39
Popularity of social media platforms for health research recruitment 39
Privacy of research subjects in social media 41
Advantages and disadvantages of social media for recruiting healthcare research participants 41
Extracting and analysing data from social media healthcare research 42
Social media and the dissemination of healthcare research results 44
Generating ideas for healthcare research on social media 46
Monitoring health and research trends on social media 47
Issues and controversies around using social media for healthcare research 47
Social media in healthcare research: roles for healthcare information professionals 48

5 The Use of Social Media in Medical Education 51
Introduction 51
Library support for healthcare education via social media 52
Social media platforms to support writing for education and publication: wikis and blogs 52
Learner engagement and feedback on social media 53
Evaluating the impact of social media in healthcare education 54
Social media and the effect on hierarchies in learning 55
Mobile learning in healthcare and medical education 55
Social media and health literacy 56
Using images from social media in healthcare education 56
Social media in patient education 57
Social media as a tool for microlearning 57
Medical schools and Web 2.0 for engagement with library users 58
Using social media in education: overcoming the pitfalls 59

6 COVID-19 and Misinformation on Social Media 61
Misinformation before COVID-19 61
The COVID-19 pandemic 62
Misinformation in COVID-19 62
Can we trust social media? 64
Information about COVID-19 on various social networks 65
The media impact of COVID-19 67
The use of behavioural theory in social media messaging 68
The infodemic 69

The effect of the pandemic on libraries 71
COVID misinformation: the curious case of Surgisphere 72
Misleading healthcare information on social media platforms 73
Information inequality 74
Countering misinformation on social media with quality assessment 74

7 Barriers to the Use of Social Media in Healthcare Settings 77
Introduction 77
Linguistic barriers and health literacy 79
Digital inequality 79
Facebook algorithms and changes to the platforms 80
Social media: considering the audience 82
Communications guidelines 82
Staffing considerations 83
Security considerations 85
Technological barriers 87
The ephemeral nature of social media 91

8 Ethical, Moral and Legal Considerations of Using Social Media in Healthcare Information 95
Introduction 95
Confidentiality, privacy and security 95
Patient information and use of social media 98
The private–personal contradictions of social media for healthcare professionals 99
Protecting ourselves online 99
Social media and the law 100
Serious trends on social media: the case of TikTok 100
Social media and medication 102
Virtual worlds 103
Other ethical considerations 104
Social media: positive moral aspects 105
The role of the librarian 105

9 The Future of Social Media in Healthcare Information 107
Introduction 107
User education 107
Demonstrating impact 108
The Internet of Things 108
Infodemiology 109
Web 2.0 to Web 3.0: an inevitable transition? 110
Health Librarian 3.0: future-proofing the profession 111
Big data 112
The role of artificial intelligence (AI) 112
The human connection 114

Conclusion 115
Overcoming barriers 116

Glossary of Social Media Terms 119

References and Bibliography 125

Index 159