Contents

1 Introduction—Beyond Decline. The Long Afterlife of Galenic Pharmacopoeia 1
Fabrizio Bigotti and John Wilkins
1.1 Galen's Renaissance 4
1.2 Medicinal Therapy 7
1.3 Elemental, Occult, and 'Whole Substance' Qualities 9
1.4 Intensive Range and the Quantification of Dosage 13
1.5 Restoration, Reformation, and Challenge 15
1.6 Hybridisation: 'Galeno-Chemica' and Iatromechanism 17
1.7 Vitality and Mobility 25
1.8 A Hegelian Outlook? 30
Bibliography 35

Part I Traditions

2 Galen, De Simplicibus from Byzantium to the Early-Modern World. A Difficult Assimilation? 43
Alain Touwaide
2.1 Galen and Dioscorides 44
2.2 A Methodological Note 45
2.3 From Byzantium to the Early-Modern World 47
2.4 Printed Editions of Latin Versions 52
2.5 Giorgio Valla's De Expetendis et Fugiendis (1501) 55

2.6 Materia Medica and Philological Controversies in the Late Fifteenth Century 60
2.7 A New Dynamic 63
2.8 Differentiated Evolutions 66
2.9 Decline in the Interest in De Simplicibus 68
2.10 Conclusions 70
Bibliography 71

3 Copyists and Translators of Galen's De antidotis in the Renaissance. Georgios Alexandrou, Petros Hypselas, Iosephus Struthius, and Michelangelo Angelico 75
Simone Mucci
3.1 Georgios Alexandrou 77
3.2 Petros Hypselas 81
3.3 Józef Struś (Josephus Struthius) 85
3.4 Michelangelo Angelico 86
3.5 Conclusions 89
Bibliography 90

4 Pharmacological Tables of Galen's De Simplicibus in Leonhart Fuchs and Janus Cornarius 93
Maximilian Haars
4.1 Galenic Pharmacology in Leonhart Fuchs' Life and Work 94
4.2 Janus Cornarius 100
4.3 Pharmacological Tables of Galenic Qualities in Fuchs and Cornarius 102
4.4 Conclusions 114
Bibliography 117

5 A Matter of Taste: Lorenz Gryll and His De sapore (1566) 121
Vivian Nutton
5.1 The Academic Wanderings of a Sixteenth-Century Physician 122
5.2 De sapore: Understanding Flavours in a Galenic Context 124

5.3 Sweet is Always Better 127
5.4 Explaining Flavours: The Role of Seeds and Fracastoro's Influence 129
5.5 Conclusions 134
Bibliography 135

Part II Theories

6 Determining Dosage. The Rationalisation of Galenic Therapy in the Long Renaissance 139
Fabrizio Bigotti
6.1 Galen on Therapy 144
6.2 Principles of Therapy: Time and Intensity 147
6.3 Transforming Galen I: Seeking Mathematical Precision 151
6.4 Handling Compounds: Gentile's De Proportione Medicinarum 153
6.5 Tommaso del Garbo and the Universal Body Principle 158
6.6 Transforming Galen II: Expanding the Practical Applications 162
6.7 Bartolomeo Montagnana: Defining Dosage and the Effectiveness of Medical Preparations 162
6.8 To Every Age Its Quantity: Benedetto Vittori's Compendium de Dosibus 167
6.9 Back to Galen: Rondelet's De Ponderibus Medicamentorum 168
6.10 A Problematic Tradition 172
Bibliography 174

7 Sympathy, Antipathy, and the Nature of Occult Qualities in Galen and Jean Fernel 177
Brooke Holmes
7.1 Galen's Sympathies 181
7.2 Galen on Antipathy, Wondrous Therapies, and the Power of the Whole Substance 188
7.3 Galen's Unfinished Project in Jean Fernel's on Hidden Causes 201
Bibliography 206

8 Drug Absorption and Food Digestion in Late Renaissance Medicine: The Galenic Interpretation of Jean Fernel (1567) 213
Elisabeth Moreau
8.1 Food Digestion in Physiologia 218
Attraction and Mixture in the Stomach 219
Blood and Humours in the Liver 223
8.2 Drug Absorption in Therapeutices 225
Drugs with 'Manifest' Qualities 228
Drugs with 'Occult' Qualities 233
8.3 Conclusions 238
Bibliography 239

9 Reductionism and Emergentism in Sixteenth-Century Theories of Antidotes: The Cases of Thomas Erastus and Girolamo Mercuriale 245
Andreas Blank
9.1 Antidotes and the Concept of Action of the Whole Substance 250
9.2 Reductionism in Erastus's Account of Antidotes 255
9.3 Emergentism in Mercuriale's Account of Antidotes 266
9.4 Conclusion 278
Bibliography 279

Part III Transformations and Trades

10 The Role of Lignum Vitae (Guaiacum sanctum L.) in the Context of the Majorcan Reception of Galen's Pharmacology (Fifteenth to Sixteenth Centuries) 285
Pablo José Alcover Cateura
10.1 Assimilation 289
10.2 Dispensation 293
10.3 Treatment 295
10.4 Patients: Prostitutes as a Case Study 298
10.5 Conclusions 299
Bibliography 300

11 The Columbian Exchange and Galenic Pharmacology: Galenic Materia Medica in the Viceroyalty of New Spain 305
Paula De Vos
Bibliography 327

12 Between Tradition and Transformation. Galenic Simples and Paracelsian Iatrochemistry in Early Modern English Domestic Medicine 331
Zoe Screti
12.1 Galenic Simples in Seventeenth-Century England 334
12.2 Expanding Galen I: The Incorporation of Iatrochemistry into Seventeenth-Century Galenic Remedies 336
12.3 Expanding Paracelsus I: The Inclusion of Galenic Simples in Iatrochemical Recipes 339
12.4 A Peaceful Co-existence I: Galenic and Iatrochemical Recipes Placed Side-by-Side in Seventeenth-Century Manuscript Recipe Books 342
12.5 Galenic Simples in Eighteenth-Century Manuscript Recipe Books 346
12.6 Expanding Galen II: The Incorporation of Iatrochemistry into Eighteenth-Century Galenic Remedies 346
12.7 Expanding Paracelsus II: The Inclusion of Galenic Simples in Iatrochemical Recipes 348
12.8 A Peaceful Co-Existence II: Galenic and Iatrochemical Recipes Placed Side-by-Side in Eighteenth-Century Manuscript Recipe Books 351
12.9 Conclusions 356
Bibliography 357

13 The Case of Corallium Rubrum. Controversies and Consistencies in the Interpretation of a Galenic Simple in Early Modern England 361
Francesca Elizabeth Richards
13.1 Methodology 364
13.2 Galenic Medicine in Early Modern England 367

13.3 Coral in the Galenic Corpus 370
13.4 Coral as a Galenic Simple in Seventeenth-Century England 375
13.5 Coral and Chemical Medicine 381
13.6 Practising Physicians and Universal Medicine 383
13.7 Conclusions 388
Bibliography 390

Index 395