

CONTENTS

|                                |     |
|--------------------------------|-----|
| Preface                        | ix  |
| 1. The Background:             |     |
| Ancient Theories of Vision     | 1   |
| 2. Al-Kindi's Critique of      |     |
| Euclid's Theory of Vision      | 18  |
| 3. Galenists and Aristotelians |     |
| in Islam                       | 33  |
| 4. Alhazen and the             |     |
| New Intromission               |     |
| Theory of Vision               | 58  |
| 5. The Origins of Optics       |     |
| in the West                    | 87  |
| 6. The Optical Synthesis of    |     |
| the Thirteenth Century         | 104 |
| 7. Visual Theory in            |     |
| the Later Middle Ages          | 122 |
| 8. Artists and Anatomists of   |     |
| the Renaissance                | 147 |
| 9. Johannes Kepler and the     |     |
| Theory of the Retinal Image    | 178 |
| Appendix: The Translation of   |     |
| Optical Works from Greek and   |     |
| Arabic into Latin              | 209 |
| Notes                          | 215 |
| Selected Bibliography          | 285 |
| Index                          | 311 |