

Detailed Contents

Preface	xv
Acknowledgments	xvii
Chapter 1: Children and Adolescents: Unique Audiences	1
The Media Environment and Habits of Today's Youth	4
Children Are Different From Adults	11
Children Are Different From Each Other	14
Adolescents Are Different From Children	15
Developmental Differences in Processing the Mass Media	19
Younger Children Versus Older Children	22
From Perceptual to Conceptual Processing	22
From Centration to Decentration	22
From Perceived Appearance to Reality	25
From Concrete to Inferential Thinking	26
Older Children Versus Adolescents	27
From Real to Plausible	27
From Empirical to Hypothetical Reasoning	28
Metacognitive Thinking	28
Regulatory Competence	30
Two Overall Developmental Trends	31
Increase in Domain-Specific Knowledge	31
Increase in Processing Capacity	32
Infants and Baby Media	33
Conclusion	35
Exercises	36
References	37
Chapter 2: Advertising	47
Historical Changes in Advertising to Children	51
Content Analyses of Television Advertising	53
Cognitive Processing of Advertising	57
Attention to Advertising	57
Discrimination Between Ads and Programming	58

Comprehension of Advertising	59
Understanding Selling Intent	59
Recognition of Bias	62
Comprehension of Disclaimers	65
The Persuasive Impact of Advertising	67
Brand Loyalty	67
Desire for Products	68
Parent-Child Conflict	72
Materialism and Value Orientations	73
Phases of Consumer Behavior During Childhood	76
Marketing Strategies in the 21st Century	77
Character Merchandising	77
Product Placement	79
Viral Marketing	80
Online Marketing to Youth	81
Marketing in Schools	84
Teaching Advertising Literacy	86
Conclusion	88
Exercises	89
References	90
Chapter 3: Prosocial and Educational Media	99
Economic and Regulatory Forces That Affect Media Offerings for Children	99
Regulation	100
Economics	101
Children's Educational Learning From Media	103
The Lessons of Sesame Street and Children's Educational Media	103
Media and Make-Believe	105
Media and Language Learning	107
Lasting Effects of Exposure to Educational Media	108
When the Medium Is the Message	109
Children's Social Learning From Media	110
Prosocial Media Content for Children	111
Do Prosocial Media Affect Youth?	111
The Research Evidence	112
Empathy	112
Altruism/Helping	113
Social Interaction	114
Acceptance of Others/Acceptance of Diversity	115
The Limitations of Research on Prosocial Content for Children	116
Prosocial Media for Adolescents	117
Prosocial Messages and Outcomes in New Media Technologies	117
National and International Prosocial Efforts	120
Opportunities Presented by New Media Technologies for Children With Learning Differences	122

Learning to Learn From Media	123
Conclusion	124
Exercises	124
Notes	125
References	125
Chapter 4: Media Violence	133
How Violent Are American Media?	135
Does Media Violence Attract Youth?	140
Can Media Violence Lead to Aggression?	143
Experimental Studies	143
Correlational Studies	145
Longitudinal Studies	146
Meta-analyses	149
Why Does Exposure to Violence Encourage Aggression?	151
Cognitive Priming	151
Social Learning	153
Social Informational Processing Theory	154
Types of Portrayals That Encourage the Learning of Aggression	156
Types of Youth Most at Risk	157
Developmental Differences in Processing Media Violence	159
Relational or Social Aggression	161
Can Media Violence Desensitize Young People?	164
Can Media Violence Produce Fear?	167
Cultural Debates About Media Violence	171
Guns and the Media	171
Suicide and the Media	174
Japan Versus the United States: A Cross-Cultural Comparison	175
Can Media Violence Have Positive Effects?	176
Conclusion	177
Exercises	178
References	180
Chapter 5: Sex, Sexuality, and the Media	195
Why Is This an Issue?	198
Where's the Sex?	201
Traditional Media	201
Television	201
Prime-Time TV	201
Soap Operas	206
Reality TV	207
A Broader Definition of Sex	208
Advertising	209
Movies	211
Print Media	214

Music and Music Videos	215
Music	215
Music Videos	219
New Technology	220
Social Networking	222
Sexting	222
Pornography	224
What the Research Says	227
Correlational Studies	227
Experimental Studies	228
Longitudinal Studies	228
Why Teenagers May Be Particularly Susceptible to
Sexual Content in the Media	233
Contraceptive Advertising	235
Prosocial Sexual Content on Television	238
Solutions	242
Conclusion: Unanswered Questions	248
Exercises	249
References	252
Chapter 6: Drugs and the Media	271
Adolescent Drug Use	272
Determinants of Child and Adolescent Drug Use	280
Peers	280
Family	280
Personality	281
Biology	281
The Impact of Advertising on Children and Adolescents	281
Cigarettes	285
The Impact of Cigarette Advertising	285
Cigarettes in Television Programming, in Music and Music Videos, in Movies, and on the Internet	293
Alcohol	299
Research on Alcohol Advertising	299
Alcohol on TV, in Music and Music Videos, in Movies, and Online	302
Illicit Drugs	306
A Word About Prescription and Nonprescription Drugs	307
Solutions	309
Exercises	319
References	321
Chapter 7: Obesity, Eating Disorders, and the Media	337
Are the Media a Cause of Obesity in Children and Adolescents?	341
The Role of Food Advertising and Marketing	345
Fast Food	346
Junk Food	348

The Prevalence of Advertising	348
New Technology	351
Food Advertised in Schools	351
The Impact of Advertising	352
Food on TV and in Movies	353
Do Media Displace Physical Activities?	354
Media and Eating Behavior	355
Media, Sleep, and Obesity	359
The Impact of Media on Body Self-Image and Eating Disorders	360
Body Image in Media	361
Teen Magazines	362
Definitions of Beauty	363
Disordered Body Image	364
Research on Media and Body Self-Image	365
A Sociocultural Theory	366
Anorexia Nervosa and Bulimia	367
New Media	368
Conclusion	369
Solutions	369
Obesity	370
Eating Disorders	374
Media Literacy	376
Exercises	377
References	379
Chapter 8: The Internet	401
Are Children and Adolescents Using the Internet?	403
The Technology Is Changing Fast	404
Are Parents Concerned?	404
The Internet: What Is It?	408
Concerns About the Internet	409
The Internet as a Medium for Media Violence	410
Sex on the Net: A Primary Concern	411
Viewing of Sexual Materials	413
Advertising Food Products to Children:
The Latest Concern	418
Other Areas of Concern	421
Solutions to Internet Concerns	423
Government Regulation	423
Blocking Technology	425
Child-Friendly Sites	425
Media Literacy	428
On the Positive Side	428
Conclusion	431
Exercises	432
References	432

Chapter 9: Social Media	435
What Are Social Media?	435
Social Media Sites Popular Among Teens	436
Risks Associated With Social Media Use	439
Influence	439
Displays of Health-Risk Behaviors on Social Media	440
Cyberbullying	442
Sexting	445
Online Solicitation	446
Benefits of Social Media	447
New Opportunities for Education and Prevention	447
Connection and Social Capital	448
Civic and Political Engagement	450
Academic Work	451
Conclusion	452
Exercises	452
References	453
Chapter 10: Video Games	457
The Development of Video Games	457
Time Commitment	458
Why Are Video Games Popular?	459
Game Ratings	460
A Closer Look at Violent Video Games	462
The Appeal of Violent Video Games	462
The Importance of a Preference for Violent Video Games	462
An Integrative Theoretical Model	463
Mechanisms	463
Desensitization to Violence	465
Evaluating Research on the Effects of Exposure to Violent Video Games	466
High-Risk Players and a Relative Risk Model	467
The Negative Impact of Gender Stereotypes	468
Video Games and Health Risks	469
Physical Injury	469
Seizures	470
Cardiovascular Reactivity	470
Obesity	471
Attention Problems	471
Adjustment Disorders	471
Addiction	472
The Positive Potential of Video Games	473
Skill Improvement	473
Video Games in Education	474

Games for Health	475
Exergames	475
Brain Fitness Games	475
Games for Coping With Medical Conditions	476
Psychotherapy	476
Games for Change	476
Public Policy and Practical Recommendations	478
Conclusion	481
Exercises	481
References	481

Chapter 11: Family and Media 487

The Home as a Multimedia Environment	488
Television in the Bedroom	488
Television Viewing During Mealtime	490
The Constant TV Home	490
Socialization to Media Use Within the Family Context	491
Parental Mediation of Children's Media Use	492
Theoretical Perspectives	494
Ecological (Systems) Theory	495
Baumrind's Taxonomy of Parenting Styles	497
Family Communication Patterns	498
Social Cognitive Theory	500
Reducing Screen Time in the Home	501
Exercises	502
References	502

Chapter 12: Media Literacy/Media Education 507

Demands for Change	509
Defining Media Literacy	509
Defining Media Education	510
Uses of Media Literacy	511
Does Media Literacy Work? Reviewing the Literature	512
Teaching Media Literacy Skills	513
Media Literacy and Public Health	515
Tobacco, Alcohol, and Drugs	515
The Importance of Emotion	517
Nutrition and Obesity	519
Body Image	521
Media Education and Violence	522
Responding to Sexual Portrayals	527
Channel One: The Largest Media Literacy Experiment	528
Channel One's Media Literacy Curriculum	528
Teaching Media Literacy	530

The Content of Media Literacy	532
A Sample Deconstruction	538
Media Literacy Production	542
Creating Counter-Ads	542
Activism and Media Education	543
Big Media: Part of the Solution?	544
Parents, Media Literacy, and Corporate Funding	545
Summary	547
Exercises	547
Notes	549
References	550
Chapter 13: Children's Media Policy	559
Philosophy of Regulation	559
U.S. Agencies	560
The Federal Trade Commission	561
The Federal Communications Commission	561
Advocacy Groups	562
Action for Children's Television	562
The Parents Television Council	562
Campaign for a Commercial-Free Childhood	562
The Center for Digital Democracy	563
Industry Self-Regulation	563
Advertising Policy	564
Privacy Policy	565
Educational Media Policy	565
Age-Inappropriate Movie and Video Game Marketing and Sales	567
Indecency	568
Ratings Policy	569
Movie Ratings	569
TV Ratings	573
Video Game Ratings	575
Moving Forward	576
Consistency in Ratings	576
Enforcement of Existing Rules	578
Greater Funding of Beneficial Media	579
Parent Education	579
Exercises	580
References	581
Author Index	585
Subject Index	627
About the Authors	647
About the Contributors	649