Section I

NEED REDUCTION THEORIES

Chapter Two	The Psychoanalytic Theory of Motivation	9
--------------------	--	----------

Basic Principles of Freud's Theory, 9 • Structure of Personality, 14 • Instincts, 18 • Formal Models of Thought and Action, 19 • Scientific Method, 23 • Formation of Culture, 25 • Ego Psychology, 26 • General Evaluation, 27 • Selected Research Topics: Instincts, 28 • Aggression, 32 • Sexual Motivation, 51 • Dreams, 60 • Defense Mechanisms, 64 • Delay of Gratification, 78 • Cognitive Controls and Cognitive Styles, 80.

Chapter Three	Drive Theory	85
----------------------	---------------------	-----------

The Drive Concept, 90 • Hull's Conception of Drive, 92 • Empirical Support for Drive Theory, 94 • Secondary (Learned) Drives, 98 • Incentives, 101 • Anxiety, 105 • Conflict, 111 • Frustration, 119 • Social Facilitation, 124 • Arousal (Activation) Theory, 129.

Section II

EXPECTANCY-VALUE THEORIES

Chapter Four	Kurt Lewin's Field Theory	141
---------------------	----------------------------------	------------

Field Theory, 143 • The Life Space, 144 • Relation to Hullian Theory, 151 • Empirical Research: Conflict, 154 • Frustration and Regression, 159 •

Task Recall and Task Resumption, 161 • Substitution, 165 • Level of Aspiration, 169 • Psychological Ecology, 173.

Chapter Five Achievement Theory 179

Atkinson's Theory of Achievement Motivation, 190 • Comparison with Hullian and Lewinian Theory, 197 • Derivations and Supporting Evidence, 199 • Dynamics of Action, 209 • Achievement Motivation and Economic Development, 211 • Developmental Antecedents, 216 • Achievement Change, 220 • Achievement Needs Among Females, 222 • Social Context of Achievement, 223.

Chapter Six Social Learning Theory and Personal Responsibility 229

Rotter's Social Learning Theory, 237 • General Theoretical Orientation, 238 • Basic Concepts, 238 • Implications for Psychotherapy, 243 • Representative Research, 244 • Personal Responsibility: Locus of Control, 247 • Personal Causation, 254 • Intrinsic versus Extrinsic Motivation, 257 • Perceived Freedom, 260 • Psychological Reactance, 262 • Learned Helplessness, 264 • Personal Responsibility: An Integration, 269.

Section III

MASTERY AND GROWTH THEORIES

Chapter Seven Attribution Theory 275

Historical Background and Guidelines of the Cognitive Approach, 277 • General Attributional Approach, 279 • Heider's Naive Theory of Action, 281 • Causal Antecedents, 287 • Actor-Observer Perspective, 293 • The Rational Person, 296 • Cognitive Dissonance, 303 • Emotions, 314 • Attribution in Animal Experimentation, 323.

Chapter Eight An Attributional Theory of Behavior 327

Causal Antecedents, 329 • Individual Predispositions, 338 • Causal Schemata, 340 • Schedules of Reinforcement, 342 • Other Antecedents, 344 • Causal Dimensions, 345 • Attributional Consequences: Causal Attributions and Expectancy of Success, 350 • Causal Ascriptions and Affective Reactions, 362 • Controllability and Reactions Toward Others, 369 • Behavioral Consequences, 380 • Achievement

Strivings Reconsidered, 388 • Theoretical Overview, 393 • Theoretical Range: Parole Decisions, 393 • Affiliation and Loneliness, 396 • Mastery Behavior, 398 • Hyperactivity and Psychostimulants, 400 • Learned Helplessness and Depression, 401.

Chapter Nine Humanistic Theory and Personal Constructs _____ 407

Humanistic Theory, 408 • Motivational Principles, 409 • Self-Concept, 415 • Personal Construct Theory, 423 • Implicit Psychology, 432.
