

Contents

Preface.....	IX
List of technical abbreviations	XI
List of (shortened) bibliographical references	XIII
General Introduction.....	XVII
An alphabetical list of persons with whom canonical traditions may be associated	1
Appendix: List of abdāl	731
Index	733
List of Qur'ānic passages	802

In the first place I would like to thank my Ph.D. supervisor, Prof. Dr. J. G. G. Strubhaar, for his support and encouragement. He recognized in the early stages of my research that I embarked upon something that was bound to be difficult, and he gave me a single word of advice: try to understand. I arrived at many of my conclusions after an extensive study of the literature, so the last word is: Saint Paul's advice: 'If you have a tongue, let it speak words of wisdom' (1 Cor 14:19). I hope that the reader will find this book a useful addition to the literature on canonical traditions.

After some 20 years now as a researcher my supervisor is J.J. Stutterheim, Leiden University Library, and while keeping offical numbers quiet, throughout the years during which I have been communicating and writing this book he has been with me, helping me out and helping in accompanying me and my wife on many research trips in the Orient and reading much. Finally, I should like to express my thanks to those friends and colleagues who have helped me by one way or another in the difficult struggle over all those years to make this work, especially E.L. Cramer and H.C. van der Meulen.

A very important, unknown at the present time benefit: what a consequence of my work with and phrases, in relation to an editor, that it is professor and postdoctoral candidate for the use of sayings and quotations to be found in my article.