

Contents

Introduction Wesley Ross Johnson Implementing Self-Assessment for Students Studying EFL in Higher Education.....	5 7
Irina David, Denise Doma Summary	17
Romana Vančáková Comparison of Self-Assessment Awareness among Full-Time and Part-Time Students at Metropolitan University Prague	20
Martina Pluchtová; Hedviga Semanová The Importance of Self-Assessment for Language Learners at Universities.....	29
Irina David Romanian Language Learners' Perceptions of the Relevance of Self-Assessment	38
Denise Doma Wishful Thinking or Dream Come True? Observations on Romanian Language Learners' (Self-)Assessment of Writing from a CEFR Perspective	48
Roxana Magdalena Bârlea From Descriptors to Class Activities	59
Paul Cooper Academic Writing within Central & Eastern European Universities A Foundation Paper	80

Irena Dominiková, Paul Cooper Towards a More Specialised European Framework for (Self-)Assessing Language Competencies.....	95
Laura-Mihaela Muresan Familiarising Students of Economics with a Genre-based Approach to Academic Writing	143
Martin Lachout, Jana Pavlovová, Zuzana Minarčíková, Marek Zvirinský Reading Comprehension of University Students Studying in a Second Language	151
Summary.....	209
Resümee.....	210
References.....	212
Register	220