

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Introduction	1
1 Freedom from politics	20
'Private' freedom	20
Critique	24
Marx on freedom and Rousseau	29
Conclusion	34
2 Freedom through politics	36
Freedom and politics coincide	37
Republican freedom	38
The moderns versus the ancients?	49
Constitutional republicanism versus populist republicanism	52
Conclusion	63
3 Power, domination and human needs	65
Power and preferences	67
Power and states of domination	74
States of domination and human needs	83
Conclusion	92
4 Real modern freedom	94
Freedom as power	97
Empowerment	104
Representation	107
Resistance	116
Control	119
Freedom as power versus freedom as non-domination	122
Conclusion	131
5 Freedom and representation	133
Groups, classes and perspectives	136
Group representation and group freedom	139
Representation and freedom in South Africa	153
Conclusion: individual freedom, collective freedom and group freedom	168

6	Can and ought our political representatives control the economy?	173
	Conclusion	192
	District assemblies	202
	A revitalised consiliar system	202
	Updated tribune of the plebs	203
	Constitutional revision and safeguard	204
	Bibliography	206
	Index	220