

Contents

List of Boxes

xi

Acknowledgements

xiii

◦ Introduction

1

Contemporary Democratization

1

The Meaning of Democratization

3

Democratization and Democracy

6

Democratization and Globalization

7

The Structure and Purpose of This Book

9

1 Democracy

12

Democracy: A Simple Concept?

12

From Direct to Liberal Democracy

13

Empirical Democratic Theory

17

Critiques of Empirical Democratic Theory

20

Contemporary Theories of Democracy

22

Participatory democracy

23

Feminism

24

Associationalism

26

Citizenship

27

Cosmopolitanism

28

Conclusion

30

2 Democratization in Historical Perspective

32

The Wave Theory

32

Strengths and weaknesses of the wave approach

34

Rethinking the third wave

36

Democratization in History

37

Contemporary Democratization

44

Conclusion

45

◦ 3 Theories of Democratization

46

Modernization Theory

46

Evaluating modernization theory

48

Modernization theory today

50

Historical Sociology

51

Evaluating historical sociology	55
Historical sociology today	56
• Transition Studies	56
Evaluating transition studies	60
Transition studies today	62
An Alternative Approach: The State, Civil Society and Globalization	64
Conclusion	67
4 Democratization and the State	68
Democratization of the State	68
Institutional Transformation	70
Elections	71
Parties	73
Political leadership, presidentialism and parliamentary systems	75
The Limitations of Institutional Change	76
Obstacles to the Democratization of the State	77
Nationality problems	77
Diminished sovereignty	80
Poor state capacity	82
Authoritarian legacies	85
The political fallout from economic reform	87
Conclusion	90
5 Democratization and Civil Society	92
Civil Society and Democracy	92
Conceptualizing the Role of Civil Society in Democratization	96
Civil Society Organizations and Contemporary Democratization	99
Democratization	99
Women's movements	100
Labour movements	103
Community organizations	107
Indigenous movements	109
Civil Society after the Transition	112
Conclusion	114
6 Democratization and Globalization	116
Globalization and Democracy	116
The global political economy	117
Global governance	119

The diffusion of democratic values	120
Promoting Democracy	121
States	123
Governance institutions	129
Political parties	130
Transnational NGOs	132
Evaluating Policies in Support of Democracy	135
Conclusion	138
7 Democratization and Southern Europe	140
Portugal: Democratization or a Revolution Contained?	140
Democratization in Spain	145
Democracy Returns to Athens: The Greek Transition	150
Theorizing the Transitions	153
The State	154
The state as actor in democratization	154
State institutions and democratic change	156
The state as obstacle to democratic consolidation	157
Democratization and Civil Society	157
Popular mobilization and democracy	158
Global Factors	159
(Re)joining Europe	160
The geopolitical dimension	161
International support for democratization	162
Conclusion	163
8 Democratization in the Developing World:
Latin America and Africa	165
Democratization in Latin America	166
Democratization in Africa	171
Theorizing Democratization in the Developing World	174
The State	176
Legacies from the past	177
Reform of the state	180
Civil Society and Democratization	183
Democratization and the Global Order	187
Conclusion	190
9 Democratization in Post-Communist Countries	192
Democratization in the Post-Communist World	193
Communism in crisis	193

The disintegration of the Soviet Union	195
• East and Central Europe	198
The Balkans	202
• Theorizing Democratization in the Post-Communist World	203
The State	205
The 'stateness' problem	206
State capacity	207
Civil Society and Democratization in the Post-Soviet World	209
Democratization and Globalization	211
Geopolitics and democratic promotion	213
Conclusion	215
10 Democratization in Asia	217
Tentative Patterns of Regional Democratization	217
South Korea	218
Taiwan	220
The Philippines	222
China	223
Theorizing Democratization in Asia	226
The State	228
Civil Society	232
Globalization and Democracy	234
Conclusion	237
Conclusion	238
The Causes of Democratization	239
Explaining Outcomes	243
The Future of Democratization	246
Bibliography	248
Index	267