

Contents

1. The Discovery of Deep Time	1
Deep Time	1
Myths of Deep Time	3
On Dichotomy	8
Time's Arrow and Time's Cycle	10
Caveats	16
2. Thomas Burnet's Battleground of Time	21
Burnet's Frontispiece	21
The Burnet of Textbooks	23
Science versus Religion?	24
Burnet's Methodology	26
The Physics of History	30
Time's Arrow, Time's Cycle: Conflict and Resolution	41
Burnet and Steno as Intellectual Partners in the Light of Time's Arrow and Time's Cycle	51
3. James Hutton's Theory of the Earth: A Machine without a History	61
Picturing the Abyss of Time	61
Hutton's World Machine and the Provision of Deep Time	63
The Hutton of Legend	66
Hutton Disproves His Legend	70
The Sources of Necessary Cyclicity	73
Hutton's Paradox: Or, Why the Discoverer of Deep Time Denied History	80
Borges's Dilemma and Hutton's Motto	92
Playfair: A Boswell with a Difference	93
A Word in Conclusion and Prospect	96

4. Charles Lyell, Historian of Time's Cycle	99
The Case of Professor Ichthyosaurus	99
Charles Lyell, Self-Made in Cardboard	104
Lyell's Rhetorical Triumph: The Miscasting of Catastrophism	115
Lyell's Defense of Time's Cycle	132
Lyell, Historian of Time's Cycle	150
The Partial Unraveling of Lyell's World View	167
Epilogue	178
5. Boundaries	181
Hampton's Throne and Burnet's Frontispiece	181
The Deeper Themes of Arrows and Cycles	191
Bibliography	211
Index	217