Introduction	vii
1. Typographical conventions	vii
1. Basic principles for representing sentences at the tectogrammatical level	1
2. Relation between the tectogrammatical level and the lower levels	4
3. Node types	5
4. Tectogrammatical lemma (t-lemma)	7
4.1. Basic form of the word	7
4.2. T-lemma of derived expressions	7
4.2.1. Grammatemes used for representing derivations	8
4.2.2. Derivation t-lemma + functor	9
4.2.3. Derivation t-lemma + grammateme	10
4.2.4. Derivation t-lemma + functor + grammateme	12
4.3. Multi-word t-lemma	16
4.4. Representative t-lemma	17
4.5. T-lemma substitute	18
5. Complex nodes and grammatemes	20
5.1. Semantic parts of speech	20
5.1.1. Semantic nouns	21
5.1.2. Semantic adjectives	24
5.1.3. Semantic adverbs	25
5.1.4. Semantic verbs	27
5.2. Grammatemes	27
5.3. The sentmod attribute	32
6. Sentence representation structure	34
6.1. Dependency	34
6.1.1. Dual dependency	34
6.1.1.1. Predicative complement	34
6.1.2. Non-dependency edges	37
6.1.3. Ambiguous dependency	40
6.2. Valency	44
6.2.1. Criteria for distinguishing different kinds of modifications	44
6.2.2. Argument shifting principle	45
6.2.3. Relations between verb meanings and valency frames	46
6.2.4. Valency frames and the way they are recorded in the valency lexicon	47
6.2.4.1. Surface form of a valency modification	47
6.2.4.2. Valency frames of idiomatic expressions and complex predicates	49
6.2.4.3. Valency lexicon	50
6.2.5. Representing valency in the tectogrammatical trees	51
6.3. Clauses (governing, dependent, verbal, non-verbal)	51
6.3.1. Verbal and non-verbal clauses	51
6.3.1.1. Verbal clauses	51
6.3.1.2. Non-verbal clauses	53
6.3.2. Dependent and independent clauses (clause connecting)	54
6.3.3. Dependent verbal clauses (complex sentences)	57
6.3.3.1. Dependent verbal clauses without a finite verb form	57
6.3.3.2. Supporting elements	60
6.3.3.3. False dependent clauses	63
6.4. Parataxis	66
6.4.1. Coordination, apposition, mathematical operations and intervals	70
6.5. Parenthesis	72
6.6. Ellipsis	75
6.6.1. Ellipsis	76
6.6.1.1. Ellipsis of a governing meaning unit	76
6.6.1.2. Ellipsis of a dependent meaning unit	80
6.6.1.3. Specific elliptical constructions	83
6.6.2. Newly established nodes in more complex syntactic structures	91
6.6.3. Nodes representing negation with verbs	92
6.6.4. Survey of newly established nodes	93
7. Specific phenomena	94

7.1. Multi-word lexical units	94
7.1.1. Multi-word predicates	95
7.1.1.1. Modal predicates	95
7.1.1.2. Phase predicates	99
7.1.1.3. Quasi-modal and quasi-phase predicates	99
7.1.1.4. Complex predicates	100
7.1.1.5. Verbonominal predicates (the copula být)	103
7.1.2. Idioms	104
7.2. Numbers and numerals	105
7.3. Identifying expressions	109
7.3.1. Identification structure	111
7.4. Foreign-language expressions	113
7.5. Direct speech	115
7.6. Text segments marked by graphic symbol	119
8. Functors and subfunctors	121
8.1. Functors for effective roots of independent clauses	121
8.2. Argument functors	121
8.3. Temporal functors	122
8.4. Locative and directional functors	124
8.5. Functors for causal relations	125
8.6. Functors for expressing manner and its specific variants	126
8.7. Functors for rhematizers, sentence, linking and modal adverbials	127
8.8. Functors for multi-word lexical units and foreign-language expressions	128
8.9. Functors for some specific (new) modifications	128
8.10. Specific adnominal functors	129
8.11. Functor for the predicative complement (COMPL)	130
8.12. Functors expressing the relations between members of paratactic structures	130
8.13. Further specification of the meaning of a functor	132
8.13.1. Subfunctors	132
8.13.2. Attribute for the meaning of “state”	138
9. Coreference	139
9.1. Representing coreference in the tectogrammatical trees	139
9.2. Grammatical coreference	140
9.2.1. Control	143
9.2.1.1. Types of control constructions	146
9.3. Textual coreference	150
10. Topic-focus articulation	152
10.1. Contextual boundness	152
10.2. Communicative dynamism	154
10.2.1. Basic rules for the nodes ordering in tectogrammatical trees	154
10.2.1.1. Paratactic structures and dependent clauses	157
10.2.2. Ordering of nodes in verb phrases	159
10.2.3. Ordering of nodes in noun phrases	160
10.2.4. Projectivity of tectogrammatical trees	161
10.3. Topic and focus	163
10.4. Rhematizers	163
