

CONTENTS

List of figures and tables	page viii
Preface	ix
List of abbreviations	xi
1 Introduction	1
The nature of the politics of judicial independence	2
The old and the new politics of judicial independence	5
The future politics of judicial independence	8
2 The politics of judicial independence and accountability	9
Judicial independence	9
Judicial accountability	16
The political lens	22
The 'old' and 'new' politics	27
Conclusion	29
3 The new Lord Chancellors and the executive	31
Comparing old and new Lord Chancellors	32
The evolving partnership between the judiciary and the executive	41
Defending judicial independence	50
Judicial accountability to the executive	55
Conclusion	61

4	The Courts Service, salaries and pensions	64
	Three models of court administration	65
	The Courts Service: from an executive to a partnership model	67
	Judicial remuneration	78
	Conclusion	90
5	Relations between judges and Parliament	92
	Judges as parliamentarians	92
	Judges as account-givers	99
	Judges as witnesses	101
	Select committees as guardians of judicial independence	112
	Parliamentary proceedings	118
	Conclusion	122
6	Judicial leadership and the internal governance of the judiciary	126
	From individualism to corporatism	127
	The multiple leadership roles of the Lord Chief Justice	130
	The institutional architecture of judicial governance	138
	Judicial training	147
	Judicial management and appraisal	149
	Conclusion	155
7	Judicial appointments	159
	Judicial appointments in the twentieth century	160
	The Judicial Appointments Commission	163
	JAC selection exercises	170
	Senior appointments	182

	Accountability	187
	Conclusion	189
8	The UK Supreme Court	194
	Organisation, management and leadership	195
	Financial independence	204
	Administrative independence	211
	Appointments	217
	Conclusion	220
9	Scotland and Northern Ireland	225
	Judges in devolved politics	225
	The Court Service in Scotland	231
	The Courts Service in Northern Ireland	234
	Judicial complaints and discipline	237
	Judicial appointments	239
	Conclusion	249
10	Conclusion	252
	The new politics: formalised and fragmented	253
	Political retreat and judicial advance	254
	The challenges ahead	257
	Bibliography	265
	Index	283