

Contents

General Editor's Preface	v
Preface	vii
Table of Cases and Arbitral Decisions	xix
Table of Legislation	xxix
Table of International Instruments	xxxiii

1. Introduction

I.	Definition	1
II.	Why Autonomy?	2
	1. Freedom of Contract	2
	2. Certainty and Efficiency	2
III.	The History of the Concept of Autonomy in Contract	3
	1. The Antecedents of Autonomy	3
	2. Liberalism, the Will Theory and Autonomy	7
	3. The Modern History of Autonomy	8
	4. The Triumph of Autonomy	13
IV.	Autonomy and Choice of Forum	15
	1. The Relationship Between Choice of Law and Choice of Forum	15
	2. Prorogation	15
	3. Derogation	19
V.	Autonomy and Arbitration	24
VI.	The Decline and Fall of Autonomy?	28

2. The Source of the Autonomy

I.	Choice of Law	31
	1. The Choice: 'Free-floating or Earth Bound'?	31
	2. The National Approach	32
	3. International Law or Custom as a Source	35
II.	Choice of Forum	37
III.	The Analogy of Arbitration	38
	1. Introduction	38
	2. The Right to Choose the Arbitral Forum	39

3. Choice of Law in Arbitration	41
4. Is There a Law of the Forum?	42
IV. Conclusion	44

3. The Limits on the Exercise of Autonomy

I. Introduction	46
II. The International Character of the Agreement	47
1. What is Internationality?	47
2. Possible Factual Connections	48
(a) The fact that the parties to the contract have their places of business in different States	48
(b) The different nationalities of the parties	49
(c) The different domiciles or habitual residences of the parties	49
(d) The fact that the place of contracting is abroad	49
(e) The fact that the place of performance is abroad	50
(f) Payment in foreign currency or in a foreign place	50
(g) The fact that the property which is the subject of the contract is situated abroad	50
(h) The time at which the factors should be considered	50
3. The Economic Test	51
4. The Subjective Test	52
III. Is a Connection with the Chosen Law Required?	55
IV. The Need for a Contemporary National Legal System	60
1. What is meant?	60
2. That the Law Chosen be that of a State	61
3. That the Law Chosen Apply from Time to Time	63
V. That the Choice should be Bona Fide and Legal and not Contrary to Public Policy	66
1. Introduction	66
2. The Legality of the Choice of Law	67
3. The Bona Fides of the Choice	68
VI. That the Choice should be Made Freely and Voluntarily	69

4. The Validity of the Choice of Law Clause

I.	Introduction	72
1.	Permissibility of Choice and Validity of Choice Distinguished	72
2.	The Method of Effecting a Choice of Law or Forum	72
II.	The Arbitration Clause	73
1.	The Independence of the Arbitration Clause	73
2.	Competence to Determine the Validity of the Main Agreement	74
3.	Competence to Determine the Existence of the Main Agreement	75
4.	What Law Determines the Question of Independence?	76
5.	The Law Governing the Validity of the Arbitration Clause	76
6.	The Existence of the Arbitration Clause	77
III.	The Choice of Forum Clause	79
1.	The Independence of the Choice of Jurisdiction Clause	79
2.	Competence to Determine the Validity of the Agreement	79
3.	Competence to Determine the Existence of the Principal Contract	80
4.	Existence and Validity of the Jurisdiction Clause	82
IV.	The Choice of Law Clause	84
1.	The Independence of the Choice of Law Clause	84
2.	The Determination of the Validity of the Contract	84
3.	Determination of the Existence of the Agreement by the Chosen Law	85
V.	The Preliminary Question of the Exercise of Choice	86
1.	The Permissibility of the Choice	86
2.	The Determination Whether There is a Choice	87
VI.	The Form of the Clause	91
VII.	The Existence of the Agreement on Choice of Law	92
1.	The Available Options	92
2.	The Law of the Forum	92
3.	Consent as a Question of Fact	93
4.	The Putative Proper Law	94
5.	The Problem of Silent 'Consent'	96
VIII.	The Substantial Validity of the Agreement as to Choice of Law	97

IX.	Interpretation of the Choice of Law Clause	98
X.	The Time of Choice	98
	1. Is it Possible to have a Floating Choice?	98
	2. What Law Determines Whether there can be a Floating Choice?	100
XI.	Change of Choice	100
	1. The Right to Change the Applicable Law	100
	2. What Law Determines the Right to Change the Applicable Law?	101
	3. Effect of a Change of Applicable Law	101
	4. The Rights of Third Parties	102
5. The Implied or Tacit Choice
I.	A Real Choice or a Mythical Choice?	104
	1. The Presumed Intention of the Parties	104
	2. The Intention of the Parties Becomes Paramount	105
	3. The Three-Tiered Test	106
	4. The Rejection of the Three-Tiered Test	107
	5. The Conventions	109
II.	The Time at Which Circumstances Must be Taken into Account	111
III.	The Applicable Law to Determine the Tacit Choice	113
IV.	The Indicators of a Tacit Choice	113
	1. What are the Possible Indicators?	113
	2. The Use of a Standard Form	115
	3. Previous Courses of Dealing or Related Dealings	116
	4. The Selection of a Particular Judicial Forum	116
	5. Arbitration Clauses	117
	6. References in the Contract to Provisions of a Particular Legal System	118
	7. The Common Residence or Nationality of the Parties	118
	8. Reliance on a Particular Legal System in Subsequent Proceedings	119
	9. The Validation Principle	119
	10. The Specification of the Place of Performance	120
V.	Partial Choice	120
VI.	The Implied Change of Choice	120

6. Contract Splitting

I.	Introduction	122
	1. Definition	122
	2. The Range of the Selected Law	123
	(a) Capacity	124
	(b) Formal Validity	127
	(c) Mode of Performance	127
II.	The Right to Split the Applicable Law	128
	1. Partial Choice	128
	2. A Choice by the Parties of Several Laws	130
	3. A Choice of What?	132
III.	One 'Governing' Law or Several?	133
IV.	Substantive Autonomy	136
V.	What Law Determines Whether 'Splitting' is Permitted?	137
VI.	Conclusion	138

7. The Protection of the Weaker Party

I.	Introduction	139
	1. Contractual Freedom and the Need for Protection	139
	2. Should Protection be a Value at the International Level?	142
	3. The Scope of the Discussion	143
II.	The Categories Needing Protection	143
	1. Consumer Transactions	143
	2. What Consumer Transactions are Covered?	145
	3. Employment Contracts	148
	4. What is an Employment Contract?	149
	5. Insurance Contracts	151
	6. Contracts of Adhesion	152
	7. Other Contracts Involving Weaker Parties	154
III.	The Options	155
	1. Exclusion of Choice	155
	2. The Limited Choice	156
	3. The Preferential Law Approach	156
	4. The Preferential Approach Without Choice	159
IV.	What Should be the Default Rule?	159

1. Consumers	160
2. Employment Contracts	162
3. Insurance Contracts	164
4. Other Categories	165
V. Restrictions on the Choice of Forum	165
1. The Brussels and Lugano Conventions	166
(a) Consumer transactions	166
(b) Employment contracts	167
(c) Insurance contracts	167
2. Outside the European Union	168
VI. Conclusion	171

8. The 'Contrat Sans Loi'

I. Introduction	172
1. The Need for a Reference to a System of Law	172
2. Amiable composition	173
3. The Self-Contained Contract	173
4. Substantive Autonomy	175
II. The Use of A-National Law	177
1. The Various Options	177
2. What is the Lex Mercatoria ?	177
3. Characteristics of the Lex Mercatoria	180
(a) The system must be autonomous	180
(b) The system must provide rules 'sufficient to decide a dispute'	180
(c) It must be a system of law	181
III. Objections to the Lex Mercatoria	182
1. That it is not 'law'	182
2. That it is too vague and uncertain	183
IV. National Recognition of the Lex Mercatoria	185
1. Recognition in Judicial Adjudication	185
(a) The choice of lex mercatoria generally	185
(b) The choice of specific transnational rules	189
(c) The effectiveness of judicial control	191
2. Arbitration	191
(a) State contracts	192
(b) Arbitration between private entities	193
(c) Recognition of awards based on non-national laws	195

V.	Choice of the Lex Mercatoria	196
VI.	Conclusions	197

9. Mandatory Rules

I.	The Nature and Object of Mandatory Rules	199
	1. An Exception to the General Scheme	199
	2. What are Mandatory Rules?	200
	3. The Nature of Mandatory Rules	202
	4. The Purpose of Mandatory Rules	203
	5. Relationship with Public Policy	206
	6. Relationship with Governmental Interest Analysis	208
	7. Relationship with Rules for the Protection of the Weaker Party	210
	8. The Approach to be Taken to Mandatory Rules	211
II.	The Mandatory Rules of the Forum and Lex Causae	212
	1. Mandatory Rules of the Forum	212
	2. Mandatory Rules of the Lex Causae	213
	3. Choice of Law and Self-Limiting Mandatory Rules	215
III.	Mandatory Rules of a Third Country	217
	1. Historical Development	217
	2. The Rome Convention	219
	3. Other Conventions	220
	4. National Laws and Proposals	221
	5. The American Position	223
	6. Third Country Mandatory Rules in English Law	224
	7. Third Country Mandatory Rules in German Law	225
	8. When Should Third Country Mandatory Rules be Applied?	225
IV.	Arbitration and Mandatory Rules	226
	1. Does Arbitration have a Forum?	226
	2. Forum-Less Arbitration and National Laws	228
	(a) The mandatory rules of the place where the arbitration happens to be conducted	228
	(b) The mandatory rules of the judicial forum	229
	(c) The mandatory rules of the national law chosen by the parties as applicable to their contract	230
	(d) The mandatory rules of States closely connected with the contract	231
	(e) International public policy	232

V.	Conclusion	233
----	------------	-----

10. The Interrelationship between Choice of Law in Contract and Tort

I.	The Problem Stated	235
	1. When Contract and Tort Intersect	235
	2. Concurrent Actions	237
	3. Possible Solutions	238
	(a) Through classification	238
	(b) To prefer the contractual relationship	238
	(c) To refer the conflict in whole or in part to the lex delicti	239
	(d) A sui generis solution	240
II.	The Accessory Choice of Law Rule (Akzessorische Anknüpfung)	240
	1. What Does it Mean?	240
	2. The Acceptance of the Accessory Choice of Law	242
	3. Accessory Choice of Law in the Common Law	243
	4. The Delimitation of the Accessory Choice of Law	246
III.	A solution based on the lex delicti	247
IV.	Third Party Rights and Contracts	250
	1. In General	250
	2. Direct Action Against Insurer	250
V.	Contractual Release from Tortious Liability	252
VI.	Restitution and Contract	253
VII.	Conclusion	256

11. The Summation

I.	The Triumph of the Will of the Parties	258
II.	The Relationship Between Autonomy and National Law	259
	1. National Law Still Ultimate Controller	259
	2. Judicial Process	260
	3. International Arbitral Process	260
III.	The Conditions of Choice	261
	1. Generally Accepted Conditions	261
	(a) That the contract have an international character	261

(b) That the law chosen be a national law	262
(c) That the choice not be prohibited by a mandatory law of the forum or be contrary to its fundamental public policy	262
(d) That the choice is made apparent either explicitly or by clear implication	263
2. Other Suggested Conditions	263
(a) That the law or forum chosen must have a reasonable connection with the transaction or the parties	264
(b) That the choice of law or forum should not be 'evasive'	264
(c) That the parties cannot 'freeze' the applicable law at a point of time	264
(d) That the choice be made between parties with equivalent bargaining power	264
(e) That the law chosen by the parties does not invalidate the contract	265
IV. The Role of the Chosen Law	265
V. The Role of the Law Applicable to the Contract in Default of Choice	266
VI. The Role of the Law of any Other State	266
Bibliography	269
Index	279