

Contents

List of Figures and Tables	xi
Preface and Acknowledgements	xiii
Notes on the Contributors	xv
Introduction: Theories of the State	1
Colin Hay and Michael Lister
Defining the state	4
The concept of the state	9
Recent developments in state theory	13
Beyond the state?	14
Structure of the book	15
Further reading	20
1 Pluralism	21
Martin Smith
The roots of pluralism	22
The rise of American pluralism	25
The reformulation of pluralism	28
Developments in British pluralism	29
Developments in contemporary pluralism	31
Conclusion	36
Acknowledgements	37
Further reading	37
2 Elitism	39
Mark Evans
Classical elitism	41
The classical elitists in perspective	43
Modern elitist perspectives – from radical elitism to the statist	44
The statist and the governing elite	47
The modern elitists in perspective	49
Contemporary elitist approaches	50
In summary	57
Further reading	58

3	(What's Marxist about) Marxist State Theory?	59
	Colin Hay
	Marxism and the state	60
	A genealogy of the state in Marxist theory	65
	Conclusions	76
	Further reading	78
4	Public Choice	79
	Andrew Hindmoor
	Public choice	81
	Public choice, market failure and state failure	83
	Forms of state failure	86
	The critique of public choice	92
	Public choice without prejudice	94
	Conclusion	96
	Further reading	97
5	Institutionalism	98
	Vivien Schmidt
	From the 'old institutionalism' to the 'new institutionalism'	99
	Rational choice institutionalism	102
	Historical institutionalism	104
	Sociological institutionalism	107
	Discursive institutionalism	109
	Conclusion	114
	Further reading	117
6	Feminism	118
	Johanna Kantola
	Feminist contributors	119
	Criticisms of feminist perspectives on the state	126
	Current feminist debates	131
	Conclusion	134
	Further reading	134
7	Green Theory	135
	Matthew Paterson, Peter Doran and John Barry
	Green critiques of the state	136
	Disempowerment and democracy	142
	A green anarchism?	143

Greening the state?	146
Conclusions	152
Further reading	154
8 Poststructuralism	155
Alan Finlayson and James Martin
Locating poststructuralism	155
Laclau and Mouffe: the impossibility of the state	161
Destabilizing state sovereignty	163
Foucault, power and governmentality	166
Conclusions	170
Further reading	171
9 Globalization and the State	172
David Marsh, Nicola J. Smith and Nicola Hothi
The globalization debate	172
Unpacking the relationship between economic processes, discourse(s) and policy outcomes	178
Conclusion	189
Further reading	189
10 The Transformation of the State	190
Georg Sørensen
Introduction	190
Economic transformation: the effects of globalization	191
Political transformation: towards multi-level governance	194
The transformation of community	196
The transformation of sovereignty	199
The connection to theories: interpretations of state transformation	202
Changes in statehood	204
Conclusion: new debates in the wake of state transformation	207
Further reading	208
11 Governance, Government and the State	209
B. Guy Peters and Jon Pierre
Understanding the so-called shift from government to governance	210
The resilience of institutions	214

Governance, the state and political power	220
Conclusion	221
Further reading	222
12 Public/Private: The Boundaries of the State	223
Matthew Flinders
The topography of the state	225
The state: complexity, accountability and depoliticization	233
Shifting sands: the boundaries of the state	244
Further reading	247
Conclusion	248
Michael Lister and David Marsh
Changing theories of the state: has there been a convergence?	248
The role of the state: challenges and responses	254
What would a more sophisticated conceptualization of the state look like?	256
Future directions	260
Bibliography	262
Author Index	296
Subject Index	302