

Contents

List of tables and figures	v
Notes on the contributors	vii
Foreword by Judith Phillips	xiii
 one Introduction Kathrin Komp and Stina Johansson	 1
 Part I: Theoretical framework
two A demographer's view: population structures tell a story about lifecourses J. Scott Brown and Scott M. Lynch	13
three A lifecourse scholar's view: lifecourses crystallise in demographic structures Andreas Motel-Klingebiel	29
 Part II: Critical perspectives
four Generations in ageing Finland: finding your place in the demographic structure Antti Karisto and Ilkka Haapola	45
five Gender in ageing Portugal: following the lives of men and women Karin Wall and Sofia Aboim	65
six Socioeconomic status in ageing Poland: a question of cumulative advantages and disadvantages Konrad Turek, Jolanta Perek-Białas and Justyna Stypińska	85
seven Ethnicity in ageing America: a tale of cultures and lifecourse Takashi Yamashita, Timothy S. Melnyk, Jennifer R. Keene, Shannon M. Monnat and Anna C. Smedley	107
eight The urban–rural split in ageing Australia: diverging lifecourses, diverging experiences Rachel Winterton and Jeni Warbuton	129
 Part III: Practical implications
nine The individual in ageing Germany: how the self-employed plan for their old age Annette Franke	149

ten	Families in ageing Netherlands and ageing China: redefining intergenerational contracts in lengthened lives Fleur Thomese and Zhen Cong	167
eleven	Social care in ageing Sweden: learning from the life stories of care recipients Stina Johansson	183
twelve	The labour market in ageing Sweden: lifecourse influences on workforce participation Mikael Stattin and Daniel Larsson	203
thirteen	The state in ageing Canada: from old-age policies to lifecourse policies Kathrin Komp and Patrik Marier	221
Part IV: Discussion and conclusion
fourteen	Discussion and conclusion Stina Johansson and Kathrin Komp	239
Index		251