

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
1 Security unbound and democracy	1
Insecurity and democracy	2
Unbinding security	5
Overview	8
2 Political reading of security	12
Security and politics	13
Democracy and security policies	20
Enacting limits of democracy	24
Conclusion	29
3 Insecurity as exception	32
Exceptionalist insecurity	33
Intensifying insecurity	35
War and enemy construction	38
Insecurity between law and politics	41
Militarising politics	48
Intimacy and resistance	59
Conclusion	68
4 Diffusing insecurities	74
Insecurity without limits?	76
Limits, boundaries, continuities	79
Associative securitising	83
Conclusion	87
5 Assembling suspicion	91
Security as communications work	92
Surveillance	96

From risk to suspicion	100
Assembling	107
Conclusion	116
6 Surveillance, democracy, privacy	121
Diffusion and democracy	122
Surveillance limiting democracy	124
Privacy	128
Extraction, bodies, resistance	135
Privacy revisited	141
Conclusion	144
7 Security technology and democratic limits	148
Technological imperative and technocracy	148
Breakdown of sociality	154
Post-humanity	158
Conclusion	170
Appendix: post-human history, risk, contingency	172
8 Insecurity, democracy, political	178
Exceptionalising politics	183
Diffusing politics	186
Conclusion	190
Bibliography	192
Index	211