

Contents

List of figures, tables and snapshots	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Studying work, society and organisation	5
Key issues	5
People, work and society	5
Social organisation, work organisations and thinking about work sociologically	7
Choices, constraints and opportunities in work and society	9
Work and the sociological imagination	11
Sociology, critique and the democratic debate about work	12
Sociology and the historical coming to terms with industrialisation	12
Contemporary sociology and the informing of democratic choices about work	14
The continuing challenge	17
Sociology and the future of work	18
Researching and theorising work patterns and experiences	20
Sociology as science	20
Theory, work and society	21
Concepts, definitions and theories	21
A range of research methods	22
Methodological assumptions	24
Summary	29
2 Analysing work and organisation: scientific management, human relations and negotiated orders	32
Key issues	32
Strands of thought and key theoretical perspectives in the sociology of work and organisation	32
The managerial–psychologistic strand	34
Scientific management	34

Psychological humanism	36
Discussion	39
The Durkheim-human-relations-systems strand	40
Emile Durkheim	41
Human relations and the Hawthorne studies	43
Systems thinking in the sociology of work and organisation	47
Corporate cultures	48
Discussion	49
The interactionist-negotiated-order strand	50
The Chicago school and symbolic interactionism	51
Organisations as negotiated orders	52
Ethnomethodology	53
Discussion	55
Summary	56
3 Analysing work and organisation: institutionalism, labour process and discourse analysis	57
Key issues	57
The Weber-social-action-institutional strand	57
Max Weber	58
Orientations to work	61
Institutional theories of organisation and the social construction of reality	62
Discussion	66
The Marxian-labour-process strand	66
Marx and Engels	67
Marxian industrial sociology and labour process analysis	68
Discussion	70
The post-structuralist strand and postmodernism	72
Postmodernism	73
Post-structuralist labour process thinking, Foucault, discourse and human subjectivity	74
Discussion	75
Sociology, discourses and working lives	77
Summary	79
4 Work, organisation and globalisation	80
Key issues	80
The nature of modern societies	80
The emergence of industrial capitalism	83
From feudalism to capitalism	83
Protestantism and the spirit of capitalism	85
Social groups and the rise of industrialism	87
Industrialisation and the changing division of labour	89
Technology, science and social change	92

Industrial capitalist social organisation: change and transition	95
Post-industrialism and the information society	96
Post-Fordism	97
Flexible specialisation	100
Postmodernity	100
McDonaldisation and the blurring of the manufacturing–service distinction	101
Globalisation in perspective	104
Summary	111
5 Work organisations	112
Key issues	112
The organisational principle of work structuring	112
The nature of work organisations	114
Official and unofficial aspects of organisations	118
Organisational structures and cultures	120
Official structure and culture: basic organisational design principles	124
Bureaucracy	125
Classical administrative principles	127
Taylorism and Fordism	128
The limits of bureaucracy and the paradox of consequences	129
The virtues of bureaucracy and the fantasy of the post-bureaucratic organisation	133
Bureaucratic and market logics: an inevitable tension	135
Contingency and choice in the shaping of organisational structures and cultures	136
Micropolitics, careers and unofficial management practices	140
Vertical aspects of micropolitics	141
Horizontal aspects of micropolitics	144
Unofficial practices and bureaucratic dysfunctions	146
Ambiguity and decision processes	148
Summary	150
6 The changing organisation and control of work	152
Key issues	152
Work restructuring and the logic of corporate management	152
The restructuring of work in established economies	153
Financialisation, crisis and instability	154
The logic of corporate management	155
Choice and circumstance in the shaping of employment or 'human resourcing' practices	158
Labour processes and employment practice options	159
HRM and 'high commitment' and 'low commitment' options	160
The pursuit of flexibility and direct and indirect managerial control options	165

Flexibility and new work control practices	167
Teamworking and control	168
Lean production, downsizing and delayering	171
Information and communication technologies (ICTs) and control	173
Culture management and worker subjectivity	176
Summary	179
7 The occupational principle and the social organisation of work	181
Key issues	181
The occupational principle of work structuring	181
Occupational structure, class, status and inequality	184
Occupations in a changing class structure	186
Labour market segmentation and non-standard employment	188
Part-time and temporary work	189
Home and teleworking	190
Work outside employment	192
Self-employment	192
Paid work in the informal economy	194
Domestic work	195
Voluntary work	198
Women, men and work	199
Explaining patterns of gender inequality	204
Ethnicity and work	206
Summary	207
8 Aspects of occupations	208
Key issues	208
Managers, ownership and control	208
Supervisors, 'first line managers' and team leaders	210
Knowledge, creative and cultural workers	211
Dirty work and lowly occupations	213
Occupational recruitment and socialisation	213
Occupational careers	216
Occupational identity, culture and ideology	218
Occupational communities	221
Professionalisation and occupational strategies	222
Summary	228
9 Culture, work orientations and the experience of working	229
Key issues	229
Work, meaning and culture	229
Entering work	233
Choice and opportunity structures	233
Class, family and educational influences	234

Work and satisfaction	236
Technology, work experience and alienation	238
Work orientations: variations, dynamics and the negotiation of implicit contracts	241
Dynamic work orientations and changing worker priorities	243
Dynamic work orientations and the negotiation of implicit contracts	246
Patterns of work orientation and experience within the organisational hierarchy	249
Women's preferences, choices and work orientations	250
Summary	253
10 Identity, narrative and emotion in and out of work	255
Key issues	255
Identity, self-identities and social-identities	255
Identity work	256
Narratives and the link between culture and identity	259
Masculinity and identity	260
Moulding human subjects and 'the enterprising self'	261
Identity tensions, ambiguities and occupational circumstances	262
Portfolio and 'boundaryless' careers or 'one dead-end job after another'	263
Managerial work, identities and experiences	266
Anxiety and the human condition	268
Angst and managerial work	268
The rise of the stress discourse	269
Emotions and feelings	270
Emotional labour and emotion management	271
Aesthetic labour	273
Sexuality and the workplace	274
Work and non-working lives	275
Work and leisure	276
Work-life balance	276
Unemployment	279
Summary	281
11 Conflict, mobilisation and regulation at work	282
Key issues	282
Conflict and co-operation at work	282
Industrial relations and the sociology of work and industry	284
Analysing conflict at work	286
Frames of reference	286
Free market thinking	287
Unitary thinking	287
Pluralist analyses	288
Radical/critical perspectives	289

