III.5 Conclusion	83

IV. CLASSIFICATION OF N+N COMPOUNDS	85
IV.1 Introduction	85
IV.2 Overview of Bisetto and Scalise (2005-2009)	86
IV.3 On the status of ATAP compounds	92
IV.3.1 Open questions	92
IV.3.2 ATAP vs. subordinate compounds	93
IV.3.3 ATAP vs. coordinate compounds	102
IV.3.4 Towards a typology of ATAP compounds	112
IV.4 Coordinate N+N compounds	115
IV.4.1 Delimitation of coordinate compounds	115
IV.4.2 Criteria of classification	116
IV.4.3 Classification of coordinate N+N compounds	121
IV.5 Subordinate compounds	126
IV.5.1 Introduction	126
IV.5.2 Verbal nexus vs. ground compounds	126
IV.5.3 The position of the head	130
IV.5.4 Typology of subordinate compounds	135
IV.6 Relational compounds	137
IV.6.1 The notion of relational compounds	137
IV.6.2 Data gathering procedure	140
IV.6.3 Internal structure of relational compounds	141
IV.6.4 Classification of relational compounds	149
V. IRREVERSIBLE ATAP COMPOUNDS	161
V.1. Introduction	161
V.2. Filtering of I-ATAP compounds	162
V.3 Interpretation of the data	166
V.3.1 Collocability of the modifiers	166
V.3.2 Inflection	174
V.3.3 Superlative modifier	187
V.3.4 Complex modifiers of I-ATAP compounds	189
V.4 Conclusion	200

VI. VERBAL-NEXUS COMPOUNDS	203
VI.1 Introduction	203
VI.2 Filtering of verbal-nexus compounds.....	204
VI.3 Typology of head and non-head elements	207
VI.3.1. Typology of heads	207
VI.3.2. Typology of non-head elements.....	212
VI.4 Inflection of VNxCs	215
VI.5 Complex components of VNxCs.....	218
VI.5.1 Introduction	218
VI.5.2 Insertion of N-PREP-N phrases.....	218
VI.5.3 Coordinate nouns in VNxCs	220
VI.5.4 Recursive structures: VNxCs in N-N-N compounds.....	221
VI.5.5 Insertion of adjectives	223
VI.5.6 The quello pronominalization	227
VI.5.7 Overview of data about complex compound components	230
VI.6. Conclusion	234
