

CONTENTS

Foreword vii

Acronyms xvii

PART ONE When “information retrieval system” meant the memory of the oldest employee 1

- 1 The screwballs of K Street and the bad-eyes brigade 3
- 2 Intelligence analysis and open sources – the early days 23
- 3 “Not indigestion but gluttony” 47

PART TWO The “information iceberg” tips over 73

- 4 Collecting puzzle pieces while mysteries abound 75
- 5 Six qualities of information... 101
- 6 So what? Addressing the signal-to-noise problem 133

PART THREE So what now? 151

- 7 Improving information “food searches” 153
- 8 Narratives of persuasion and the battle for attention 177
- 9 A world awash in images 207

PART FOUR Conclusion 231

- 10 Don’t be surprised by surprise 233

Bibliography 261

Index 277