

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction—The Lady Doesn't Vanish: Feminism and Film Theory Constance Penley	1
1 The Place of Woman in the Cinema of Raoul Walsh Pam Cook and Claire Johnston	25
2 Dorothy Arzner: Critical Strategies Claire Johnston	36
3 Approaching the Work of Dorothy Arzner Pam Cook	46
4 Visual Pleasure and Narrative Cinema Laura Mulvey	57
5 Afterthoughts on "Visual Pleasure and Narrative Cinema" inspired by Duel in the Sun Laura Mulvey	69
6 Rereading the Work of Claire Johnston Janet Bergstrom	80
7 Feminine Discourse in Christopher Strong Jacquelyn Suter	89
8 The Popular Film as a Progressive Text—a Discussion of Coma Elizabeth Cowie	104
9 Paranoia and the Film System Jacqueline Rose	141
10 Enunciation and Sexual Difference Janet Bergstrom	159
11 Alternation, Segmentation, Hypnosis: Interview with Raymond Bellour—An Excerpt Janet Bergstrom	186

- 12 Caught and Rebecca: The Inscription of Femininity as Absence
Mary Ann Doane 196
- 13 Woman's Stake: Filming the Female Body
Mary Ann Doane 216
- 14 India Song/Son nom de Venise dans Calcutta désert: The
Compulsion to Repeat
Joan Copjec 229
- 15 The Cinema of Lol V. Stein
Elisabeth Lyon 244