

Contents

Preface	xii
Abbreviations for Creeds and Confessions	xvii
Editions, Collections, and Reference Works	xlvi
I. Definition of Creed and Confession	1
1. Continuity and Change in Creeds and Confessions	7
1.1. Continuity versus Change in the Decrees of the Ecumenical Councils	9
1.2. Patristic Thought on Continuity and Change	18
1.3. The Doctrine of the Trinity as Example of Continuity and of Change	22
1.4. The Person of Christ as Exemplar of Continuity and of Change	29
1.5. Change and the “Passing” of Creeds	31
2. The Creedal and Confessional Imperative	35
2.1. Believing and Confessing	37
2.2. Faith Defined	43
2.3. Confessing the Faith	53
2.4. The Content of the Confession	59
3. Confession of the Faith as Doctrine	64
3.1. The Teaching of the Church	66
3.2. “The Sum of Doctrine”	71
3.3. “Doctrines” and Doctrine	78
3.4. Doctrine as Dogma	88
4. Faith and Order	93
4.1. Apostolic Creed and Apostolic Ministry	100
4.2. Doctrines of Church Order East and West	104
4.3. Polity as Doctrine in the Reformed Confessions	107

II. The Genesis of Creeds and Confessions

5. Scripture, Tradition, and Creed

- 5.1. Creeds in Scripture
- 5.2. Scripture in the Creeds and Confessions
- 5.3. The Confessions and the Problem of the Canon
- 5.4. Confessional Rules of Biblical Hermeneutics

6. The Rule of Prayer and the Rule of Faith

- 6.1. The Lord's Prayer in the Confessions
- 6.2. Lex orandi lex credendi
- 6.3. The Place of Creed in Liturgy
- 6.4. Councils and Confessions on Worship

7. Formulas of Concord—And of Discord

- 7.1. Creedal Anathema and Polemics
- 7.2. Direct and Indirect Censures
- 7.3. Creeds and Confessions as Instruments of Concord
- 7.4. The Holy Spirit of Concord and the Sacrament of Concord: Two Ironic Case Histories

8. The Formation of Confessions and the Politics of Religion

- 8.1. Confessing as a Political Act
- 8.2. Civil Law on Adherence to Creeds
- 8.3. Confessions and the Formation of Politics
- 8.4. The Politics of Confessional Diversity

III. The Authority of Creeds and Confessions

9. Creedal Dogma as Church Law

- 9.1. Creedal Formulation as Enactment
- 9.2. Reception of Creeds, Councils, and Confessions as Ratification
- 9.3. The Enforcement of Orthodoxy
- 9.4. Confessional Subscription as Legal Compliance
- 9.5. Rules of Confessional Hermeneutics

10. Deeds, Not Creeds?	278
10.1. Doctrines of Christian Discipline in the Reformation Confessions	280
10.2. Heresy and/or Schism	288
10.3. Orthodoxy and Asceticism	293
10.4. Christian Love the Presupposition for Christian Confession	300
10.5. A Modern Secular Parallel	304
11. Transmission of Creeds and Confessions to Other Cultures	306
11.1. Cultus, Code, and Creed Across Cultural Boundaries	309
11.2. The Fate of Creeds in Missions and Migrations	318
11.3. Patterns of Creedal Indigenization	323
11.4. The Paradigm: Shema to Homoousios	330
12. The Orthodoxy of the Body of the Faithful	336
12.1. What Did the Laity Believe, Teach, and Confess?	340
12.2. Popular Religion, the Rule of Prayer, and Tradition	345
12.3. Conformity by the People of the Church to Civil and Creedal Law	353
12.4. Code, Creed, and Folk Culture	359
IV. The History of Creeds and Confessions	365
13. Rules of Faith in the Early Church	369
13.1. The Primal Creed	374
13.2. The Kerygma and Baptismal Symbols	377
13.3. The Deposit of the Faith, Evangelism, and Apologetics	383
13.4. Didache, Catechesis, and Formulas of Exorcism	388
13.5. Prescribed Forms of Praying and of Confessing	393
14. Affirmations of Faith in Eastern Orthodoxy	397
14.1. The Ambivalence of the Orthodox Church Toward “Symbolical Books”	399
14.2. The Liturgy as the Church’s Preeminent Confession of the Faith	405

14.3. The Sacred Tradition of the Seven Ecumenical Councils	413
14.4. The Eastern Confessions as Equal and Opposite Reactions	419
15. Professions of Faith in the Medieval West	427
15.1. The Western Reception of the Catholic Creedal and Conciliar Tradition	428
15.2. The Confessionalization of Western Sacramental Doctrine	437
15.3. Scholastic Theology as Reasoning on the Basis of the Creed	444
15.4. The Rise of Ecclesiological Confessions in the Later Middle Ages	449
16. Confessions of Faith in the Reformation Era	457
16.1. The Proliferation of Confessions in the Age of the Reformation	460
16.2. Lutheran, Reformed, Roman Catholic, and Radical “Confessionalisms”	466
16.3. Catholic Substance and Protestant Principle in Reformation Confessions	472
16.4. From Reformation Confessions to Confessional Scholasticism	480
17. Statements of Faith in Modern Christianity	486
17.1. The Discomfort with Creed Caused by the Consciousness of Modernity	488
17.2. Old and New Contexts of Christian Confessing	497
17.3. The Flowering of Creedal and Confessional Scholarship in the Modern Era	505
17.4. In Light of Their History, Do Creeds Have a Future as Well as a Past?	508
V. Bibliography	517
VI. Indexes to Creeds and Confessions of Faith in the Christian Tradition	537

A. A Comparative Creedal Syndogmaticon, with Alphabetical Index	538
B. Ecclesiastical Index: Churches, Heresies, Creeds, Confessions, Councils	575
VII. Indexes to Credo
A. References to Scripture	587
B. References to Creeds and Confessions	591
C. Names of Persons	604