

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Exploring Reconceptualist Histories and Possibilities	1
Marianne N. Bloch, Beth Blue Swadener, and Gaile S. Cannella
Section I: Foundational Debates and Continuing Questions
Chapter One: Interrogating Reconceptualizing Early Care and Education (RECE)—20 Years Along	19
Marianne N. Bloch
Chapter Two: Reconceptualizing the Early Childhood Curriculum: An Unaddressed Topic	33
Shirley A. Kessler
Chapter Three: Reconceptualizing Early Childhood Research	45
J. Amos Hatch
Chapter Four: Through a Queer Lens: Recuperative Longings and the Reconceptualizing Past ...	53
Jonathan Silin
Chapter Five: Still Waiting for the Revolution	63
Michael O'Loughlin
Chapter Six: Disciplining “Safe” Bodies in a Global Era of Child Panic: Implementing Techniques for Disciplining the Self	77
Richard T. Johnson
Chapter Seven: Social Justice, Risk, and Imaginaries	89
Susan Grieshaber and Felicity McArdle

Chapter Eight: What About Learning?	99
Liane Mozère
Section II: New Imaginaries Related to Authors' Scholarly Work and Praxis
Chapter Nine: Ki te Whai ao, ki te ao Marama : Early Childhood Understandings in Pursuit of Social, Cultural, and Ecological Justice	109
Cheryl Rau and Jenny Ritchie
Section III: Diverse Imaginaries
Chapter Ten: Situated and Entangled Childhoods: Imagining and Materializing Children's Common World Relations	121
Affrica Taylor
Chapter Eleven: Posthumanist Imaginaries for Decolonizing Early Childhood Praxis	131
Veronica Pacini-Ketchabaw and Fikile Nxumalo
Chapter Twelve: Radical Theories of Presence in Early Childhood Imaginaries	143
Chelsea Bailey
Chapter Thirteen: Black and Chicana Feminisms: Journeys Toward Spirituality and Reconnection	157
Michelle Salazar Pérez and Cinthya M. Saavedra
Chapter Fourteen: The Use of Poststructuralist Storytelling in Early Childhood Education Research	167
Alejandro Azocar
Chapter Fifteen: Revisiting Risk/Re-Thinking Resilience: Fighting to Live Versus Failing to Thrive	183
Travis Wright
Chapter Sixteen: Our Story of Early Childhood Collaboration: Imagining Love and Grace	193
Denise Proud and Cynthia à Beckett
Chapter Seventeen: Bring Back the Asylum: Reimagining Inclusion in the Presence of Others	201
Gail Boldt and Joseph Michael Valente
Chapter Eighteen: Affective/Effective Reading and Writing Through Real Virtualities in a Digitized Society	215
Liselott Mariett Olsson and Ebba Theorell
Chapter Nineteen: Learning From the Margins: Early Childhood Imaginaries, "Normal Science," and the Case for a Radical Reconceptualization of Research and Practice	235
Mathias Urban

Section IV: Social Action and Activism(s)

Chapter Twenty: Critical Qualitative Research and Rethinking Academic Activism in Childhood Studies	253
Gaile S. Cannella
Chapter Twenty-One: None for You: Children's Capabilities and Rights in Profoundly Unequal Times	265
Valerie Polakow
Chapter Twenty-Two: The Costs of Putting Quality First: Neoliberalism, (In)quality, (Un)affordability, and (In)accessibility?	279
Mark Nagasawa, Lacey Peters, and Beth Blue Swadener
Chapter Twenty-Three: Social Activism: The Risky Business of Early Childhood Educators in Neoliberal Australian Classrooms	291
Kylie Smith and Sheralyn Campbell
Chapter Twenty-Four: [Im]possibilities of Reinvention of Palestinian Early Childhood Education	303
Janette Habashi
Chapter Twenty-Five: The Global Childhoods Project: Complexities of Learning and Living With a Biliterate and Trilingual Literacy Policy	313
I-Fang Lee and Nicola Yelland
About the Authors	325