Introduction	1
Martin Davies and Louise Ravelli

Part I. Framework

1. Trust the text: the implications are daunting	5
John McH. Sinclair (University of Birmingham, England)
2. How do you mean?	20
M.A.K. Halliday (Emeritus, University of Sydney, Australia)

Part II. Metafunctions

3. Interpreting the textual metafunction	37
Christian Matthiessen (University of Sydney, Australia)
3.1 Textual issues to be discussed	37
3.2 The problem of interpreting the textual metafunction	38
3.3 Textual movement	40
3.4 The shape of the textual movement: waves	43
3.5 Second order nature of the textual metafunction	53
3.6 Dynamic character: transitions	60
3.7 Modelling waves	66
3.8 Conclusion: misinterpretations and interpretations	73
4. Interpersonal meaning in discourse: value orientations	82
J.L. Lemke (City University of New York, USA)
4.1 Semiotic functions and semantic resources	82
4.2 Heteropraxia and orientational text semantics	84
4.3 Interpersonal meaning: toward a broader semiotic interpretation	85
4.4 Genre and the social-constitutive function in text	89
4.5 Global value-orientational patterns in text	93

Part III. Lexicogrammar

5. Transitivity/ergativity: the Janus-headed grammar of actions and events	105
Kristin Davidse (University of Leuven, Belgium)
5.1 Introduction: theory and description	105
5.2 Presentation of the transitive and ergative systems	108
5.3 Transitive/ergative EFFECTIVE structures	111
5.4 Transitive/ergative MIDDLE structures	123
5.5 Transitive/ergative PSEUDO-EFFECTIVE structures	124
5.6 Conclusion	129
6. The place of circumstantials in systemic-functional grammar	136
William McGregor (Bond University, Queensland, Australia)
6.1 Introduction	136
6.2 Adverbials and rank	139
6.3 Circumstances and enhancement	142
6.4 Conclusion	145
7. An initial approach to comparatives in a systemic functional grammar	150
Gordon Tucker (University of Wales College of Cardiff)
7.1 Introduction	150
7.2 The structure set up for quality and comparison	151
7.3 The syntactic structure of than constructions	152
7.4 Semantic considerations and the system network	158
7.5 Realization	161
7.6 Conclusion and implications for other forms of comparative	164

Part IV. Functional Sentence Perspective and Theme

8. On some basic problems of Functional Sentence Perspective	167
Jan Firbas (University of Brno, Czechoslovakia)
8.1 Introduction	167
8.2 The contextual factor	169
8.3 Linear modification	172
8.4 The semantic factor	173
8.5 Factors, signals and carriers of CD	177
8.6 Potentiality	179
8.7 Intonation	181
8.8 Conclusion	185
9. Towards an understanding of the notion of Theme: an example from Dari	189
Linda Stump Rashidi (Central Michigan University, USA)
9.1 Introduction	189
9.2 Background	189
9.3 A definition of Theme	191
9.4 The structure of Dari	192
9.5 Analysis of a Dari narrative	194

9.6 Theme	197
9.7 Identification of Theme	198
9.8 Discussion	201
9.9 Conclusion	202

Part V. Text studies

10. The notion of technicality in register: a case study from the language of bridge James D. Benson and William S. Greaves (York University, Toronto, Canada)	205
10.1 Introduction	205
10.2 Introducing and defining technical terms (relational intensive identifying clauses)	207
10.3 Taxonomising	209
10.4 Explaining the world of Bridge (the 'rules of the game')	215
10.5 The function of technicality	219
11. Splitting the referent: an introduction to narrative enactors Catherine Emmott (University of Glasgow, Scotland)	221
11.1 Locating the fictional referent	221
11.2 Different forms of ambiguity	222
11.3 The structure of the mental representation	224
11.4 Signalling the appropriate enactor	225
11.5 Conclusion	227
12. The uses of passivity: suppressing agency in Nineteen Eighty-Four Daniel Kies (College of DuPage, Glen Ellyn, Illinois, USA)	229
12.1 Introduction	229
12.2 Analysis	231
12.3 Discussion	242
12.4 Analysis and discussion of manuscript revisions	244
12.5 Conclusion and some remarks on QUALITATIVE and QUANTITATIVE stylistics	245
