

Contents

List of figures	x
List of tables	xii
Acknowledgements	xv
List of abbreviations	xvii
1 The puzzle of radical right electoral fortune in Central and Eastern Europe: introductory remarks	1
The puzzle of radical right electoral fortune	2
Value wars and pathological normalcy: the radical right in the Central and Eastern European context	4
Ideological diffusion, party competition, and electoral fortune: contest over meaning	7
Towards a narrative model of radical right electoral fortune	9
Cases and levels of comparative analysis	12
Book overview	14
2 The radical right and their mainstream competitors in Central and Eastern Europe	23
Who's in? Inclusive definition of right-wing radicalism	24
Who's (barely) out? Delimitation from nearby competitors	25
Poland: League of Polish Families vs. Law and Justice	28
Slovakia: Slovak National Party vs. Smer	32
Hungary: Jobbik vs. Fidesz	35
Summary	42
3 Contest over meaning: theoretical framework and narrative interaction model of radical right electoral fortune	48
The narrative context: contests over collective nationness	50
The framing paradigm: what are issues about?	55

	Party competition: a narrative optic	60
	The narrative interaction model of radical right electoral fortune	65
	Methods of analysis	69
4	'Bulwark of Christianity'? Morality debates in Poland	86
	The narrative context: national identity, religion, and morality politics	86
	Frame identification: 'Bulwark of Christianity' vs. 'Civilization of Death'	92
	Party competition: long-lasting effects of frame takeover	109
	Summary	120
5	Defence against Hungarian dominance? Minority debates in Slovakia	125
	The narrative context: defensive differentiation in multi-ethnic states	125
	Frame identification: defence against Hungarian dominance and irredentism	131
	Party competition: Smer's strategic frame takeover	140
	Summary	149
6	A second Trianon? Nemzetpolitika debates in Hungary	155
	The narrative context: external homelands and historical traumas	155
	Frame identification: a second Trianon trauma	160
	Party competition: narrative shifts in a spatial status quo	174
	Summary	181
7	Jobbik and anti-Roma minority debates	188
	The narrative context: anti-Roma debates and neglected minority policy	188
	Frame identification: anti-Roma discourse of 'Gypsy crime'	191
	Party competition: the political career of Jobbik's frame	199
	Summary: the success of Jobbik's frame and the failure of the mainstream	206
8	Discursive influence, party competition, and electoral fortune: comparative results and conclusions	211
	Discursive influence	211
	Party competition	214

Synergy mechanisms and influence factors of radical right electoral fortune	216
Conclusions	221
Outlook	223

Appendix A: Data scores	226
--------------------------------	-----

Appendix B: Expert surveys and public opinion and election studies used	234
--	-----

Index	237
--------------	-----

List of figures

3.1	Mechanism of mythic overlaying	55
3.2	Factors of frame resonance	59
3.3	The narrative interaction model of radical right electoral fortune	66
4.1	Public perception on the necessity of Poland's distinction from the EU in the spheres of economy, political institutions, and culture and traditions	106
4.2	Public perception of European integration influence on religiosity	107
4.3	Public perception of European integration influence on liberalization of morals	108
4.4	Public perception of European integration influence on integrity/strength of the Polish family	108
4.5	Spatial shifts along the GAL/TAN dimension within the Polish party system (2002–10)	111
4.6	Spatial shifts on the issue of liberal/traditional lifestyle within the Polish party system (2004–10)	112
4.7	Spatial shifts on the issue of the role of religion in politics within the Polish party system (2004–10)	113
4.8	Salience shifts on the issue of liberal/traditional lifestyle within the Polish party system (2004–10)	114
4.9	Salience shifts on the issue of the role of religion in public life within the Polish party system (2004–10)	115
4.10	Narrative shifts of exclusionary EU frames for LPR and PiS in the Polish morality politics debates (2002–7)	116
4.11	Narrative shifts of exclusionary anti-liberalism frames for LPR and PiS in the Polish morality politics debates (2002–12)	117
4.12	Narrative shifts of exclusionary Catholic/traditional values frames for LPR and PiS in the Polish morality politics debates (2002–12)	119
5.1	Public perception of most salient societal division lines in Slovakia in 2010	138
5.2	Spatial shifts along the GAL/TAN dimension within the Slovak party system (2002–10)	142

5.3	Spatial shifts on the issue of liberal/traditional lifestyle within the Slovak party system (2004–10)	143
5.4	Spatial shifts on the issue of minority rights within the Slovak party system (2006–10)	144
5.5	Salience shifts on the issue of liberal/traditional lifestyle within the Slovak party system (2004–10)	145
5.6	Salience shifts on the issue of minority rights within the Slovak party system (2006–10)	146
5.7	Narrative shifts of summarized irredentism and threat to sovereignty frames for SNS and Smer in the Slovak minority politics debate	147
5.8	Narrative shifts of summarized historical dominance and threat to sovereignty frames for SNS and Smer in the Slovak minority politics debate	148
6.1	Spatial shifts along the GAL/TAN dimension within the Hungarian party system (2002–10)	174
6.2	Spatial shifts on the issue of liberal/traditional lifestyle within the Hungarian party system (2006–10)	175
6.3	Salience shifts on the issue of liberal/traditional lifestyle within the Hungarian party system (2004–2010)	177
6.4	Narrative salience of mythic overlaying frames in the Hungarian debates on dual citizenship	178
6.5	Narrative shifts of Jobbik	179
6.6	Narrative shifts of Fidesz	180
7.1	Spatial shifts on the issue of minority rights within the Hungarian party system (2006–10)	201
7.2	Salience shifts on the issue of minority rights within the Hungarian party system (2006–10)	202
7.3	Absolute number of 'Gypsy crime', 'crime by gypsies' and anti-'Gypsy crime' frames in the Hungarian debate on 'Roma criminality'	203
7.4	Narrative shifts of 'Gypsy crime', 'crime by Gypsies' and anti-'Gypsy crime' frames in the Hungarian debate on 'Roma criminality'	204
7.5	Narrative shifts of 'crime by gypsies' and anti-'Gypsy crime' counter-frames for Fidesz and other actors in the Hungarian debate on 'Roma criminality'	205

List of tables

1.1	Results of radical right parties in parliamentary elections in Hungary, Poland, and Slovakia	3
2.1	Radical right parties and their nearby competitors in Central and Eastern Europe	43
3.1	Framework of opportunity structures for radical right parties in Central and Eastern Europe	49
3.2	Operationalization of frame resonance	73
4.1	Distribution of frames within Polish morality politics debates, 2001–12	93
4.2	Frames of LPR and PiS in Polish debates on morality politics, 2001–12	96
4.3	Intersections between selected frames in debates on morality politics in Poland	97
4.4	Public perception of party positions on the role of the Church and the issue of abortion in Poland, 2005	102
4.5	Public perception of PiS positions on the role of the Church in Poland, 2001 and 2011	103
4.6	Public perception of the societal conflict between believers and atheists	104
4.7	Issue salience: role of the Church and religion in public life in Poland	105
4.8	Issue salience: availability of abortion in Poland	105
4.9	Resonance factors in regard to the Polish ‘Bulwark of Christianity’ frame	110
4.10	Influence indicators of radical right electoral fortune in Poland	120
5.1	Distribution of frames within Slovak debates on the Hungarian minority	132
5.2	Frames of Smer, SNS, and other actors in Slovak debates on the Hungarian minority	133
5.3	Intersections between selected frames in Slovak debates on the Hungarian minority	134
5.4	Public perceptions of party competence on minority issues in Slovakia in 2009	137

5.5	Share of responses: ethnic minorities as one of three most important issues in Slovakia in 2004 and 2009	137
5.6	Public perception of most important societal division lines according to party preferences in Slovakia in 2010	139
5.7	Distribution of opinions on the 'loyalty' of the Hungarian minority to the Slovak state in 2010	139
5.8	Opinions on alleged hidden revanchist goals of the Hungarian minority in Slovakia in 2010	140
5.9	Resonance factors in regard to the Slovak 'irredentism' and 'historical dominance' frame	141
5.10	Influence indicators of radical right electoral fortune in Slovakia	149
6.1	Distribution of frames in Hungarian debates on dual citizenship	162
6.2	Frames of Fidesz, Jobbik, and other actors in Hungarian debates on dual citizenship	163
6.3	Intersections between selected frames in Hungarian debates on dual citizenship	165
6.4	Perception of Fidesz and MSZP credibility in regard to nation-oriented policies in 2005	168
6.5	Perception of Hungarian party credibility in regard to nation-oriented policies in 2009	169
6.6	Perception of Hungarian political parties as representatives of Hungarians beyond the border in 2009	169
6.7	Opinion of Hungarian voters on the statement: 'It would be beneficial for Hungary to deal less with the issue of Hungarians beyond the border' in 2005	170
6.8	The support for the revision of the Trianon borders among Hungarian voters in 1994 and 2005	171
6.9	Influence of policy narratives on vote choice in the 2004 Hungarian referendum on dual citizenship	172
6.10	Resonance factors in regard to Hungarian 'Trianon trauma' frames	173
6.11	Influence indicators of radical right electoral fortune in Hungary (dual citizenship debates)	181
7.1	Frequency of coded frames in Hungarian 'Roma criminality' debates by year	192
7.2	Actor distribution in Hungarian 'Roma criminality' debates	193
7.3	Distribution of frames in Hungarian 'Roma criminality' debates	194
7.4	Frames of Jobbik, Fidesz, and other actors in Hungarian 'Roma criminality' debates	196
7.5	Nationalist/exclusionary attitudes of party voters in Hungary	197
7.6	Determinants of agenda-setting perception regarding Roma-related issues in Hungary	198

7.7	Opinions of party supporters on the statement 'The tendency to be criminal is in the blood of Roma' in 2009	199
7.8	Resonance factors in regard to the racist frame of 'Gypsy crime'	200
7.9	Influence indicators of radical right electoral fortune in Hungary ('Roma criminality' debates)	206
8.1	The discursive influence of radical right frames in Poland, Slovakia, and Hungary	212
8.2	Comparative influence indicators of radical right electoral fortune in Hungary, Slovakia, and Poland	217
A.1	Data scores: perceptions of EU influence on religiosity, liberal lifestyle, and traditional family in Poland	226
A.2	Data scores: spatial shifts within the Polish party system	227
A.3	Data scores: salience shifts within the Polish party system	227
A.4	Data scores: narrative shifts in the Polish morality politics debate (exclusionary EU frames)	228
A.5	Data scores: narrative shifts in the Polish morality politics debate (exclusionary 'anti-liberalism' and 'Catholic/traditional values' frames)	229
A.6	Data scores: spatial shifts within the Slovak party system	229
A.7	Data scores: salience shifts within the Slovak party system	229
A.8	Data scores: narrative shifts in the Slovak debate on the Hungarian minority	230
A.9	Data scores: spatial shifts within the Hungarian party system	230
A.10	Data scores: salience shifts within the Hungarian party system	230
A.11	Data scores: narrative shifts in the Hungarian dual citizenship debate	231
A.12	Data scores: absolute and relative number of 'Gypsy crime', 'crime by gypsies' and anti-'Gypsy crime' frames in the Hungarian 'Roma criminality' debates	232
A.13	Data scores: narrative shifts of 'crime by gypsies' and anti-'Gypsy crime' counter-frames in the Hungarian 'Roma criminality' debates	233