

Contents

Preface

ix

2000

It's a jungle out there	1
Microsoft missed the synergy boat	4
How to survive the mean streets of Ontario	7
Burgled in the world's best country	10
A visit to bobo ground zero	13
On being civil: it's not enough to say you are	16
"Randland" shows the limits of ambition	19
What would Hume think?	23
Anti-global activists ready for Prague fall	26
You call this a book? Yes	29
Citizens of America, vote Nader	33
Politicians play Canadian monster mash	37
Chaperoned to the dentist? That sucks	40
The election's unsung hero	43
Seasonal guilt is better than no guilt at all	46
Bad grammar drives me to drink	50

2001

I watch reality TV, therefore I am	53
Just drop the "W" and get on with it	56
Stories of a rocket-fuelled Socrates	59
British are no longer masters of their fate	63
Apocalypse now? You got a problem with that?	66
Romanticism is good, but get it in writing	70
Let the protest pies fly	73
The cost of losing our public space	76
Our motto: we want baseball back	80
Writers and the big, bad booksellers	83
The cart ruling: one golfer gets a free ride	87
Who's left? What's left? Left out. Left for dead	90
I watched Blind Date and now I can see ...	93
You have now heard of Empire. Empire is over	97
Two dead people	100
Mild rebukes, half-baked criticisms	104
Boom-zines bust, like the industry	107
Convergence should mean I get a TV show	110
What September 11 was not about	113
We're experiencing an existential crisis	117
Freedom, not security, is fundamental	120
The Richler: a font of distinction	124
There is no normal for the world to get back to	127

A happy time for public education 130

Football fan rage 134

2002

The meaning of icing 137

Let glass and steel scrape the sky again 141

Dihydrogen monoxide and the city 144

When the pact of civility breaks down 147

Left, right, left, right, fly a kite 151

Has Chirac anointed a French philosopher-king? 154

This is not a column about the Middle East conflict 158

The thief, the thinker, and his identity 161

Americans aren't so exceptional 164

If you're serious about God, this is a disaster 168

Greed will save the markets, again 172

What's a few stolen or missing firearms? 175

Boredom is the parent of wisdom 179

Britain should stand up to U.S. war frenzy 182

Gulf War II—You heard it here first 185

It's not un-American to oppose war 189

Drop the universal in university 192

Individuals commit crimes, not races 196

What keeps you up at night? 199

Where my rights end—and yours begin	202
The man who doesn't read is unforgivable	207
'Tis the season to debate	210

2003

You can't build an empire in 18 months	213
War opposition is too big to ignore	217
I checkmate, therefore I am	220
Cricket—a pursuit unruled by money	223
What distinguishes us from the Americans	227
Happiness is an ethical state of being	230
Don't blindly "support the troops"	234
I'm bailing out, Aeroplan and all	237
So, where are all those WMDs?	240
A stake through my heart	244
In empire's heart of darkness	247
Britain converts to the rat?	250
A lesson in the perils of lackeyhood	254
Technology: it googles the mind	258
Canucks—the gays of North America	261
Sydney could use some rude waiters	265
U.S. negligence is killing journalists	268
Are profs at their best when faking it?	271