

Contents

Preface	7
---------	---

Part One

Reason and Practice

1	Against Method Revisited	13
2	Reason and Practice	16
3	On the Cosmological Criticism of Standards	31
4	'Anything Goes'	39
5	The 'Copernican Revolution'	40
6	Aristotle not a Dead Dog	53
7	Incommensurability	65

Part Two

Science in a Free Society

1	Two Questions	73
2	The Prevalence of Science a Threat to Democracy	76
3	The Spectre of Relativism	79
4	Democratic Judgement overrules 'Truth' and Expert Opinion	87
5	Expert Opinions often Prejudiced, Untrustworthy, and in Need of Outside Control	88
6	The Strange Case of Astrology	91
7	Laymen can and must supervise Science	96
8	Arguments from Methodology do not Establish the Excellence of Science	98
9	Nor is Science Preferable because of its Results	100
10	Science is One Ideology among many and should be separated from the State just as Religion is now separated from the State	106
11	Origin of the Ideas of this Essay	107

Part Three

Conversations with Illiterates

Chapter One

Reply to Professor Agassi (with a Postscript) 125

Chapter Two

Logic, Literacy and Professor Gellner 141

Chapter Three

Marxist Fairytales from Australia 154

Chapter Four

From Incompetent Professionalism to Professionalized Incompetence – the Rise of a New Breed of Intellectuals 183

Chapter Five

Life at the LSE? 210

Index 219