

Contents

Preface	vii
List of abbreviations	xi
 Part I: Theory of information retrieval systems	 1
1 Introduction	3
2 Features of an information retrieval system	12
3 Derived indexing 1: Printed indexes	33
4 Developments in information technology	41
5 Derived indexing 2: Database access systems	56
6 Assigned indexing 1: Semantics	76
7 Assigned indexing 2: Syntax	97
 Part II: Pre-coordinate indexing systems	 121
8 Alphabetical subject headings: Cutter to Austin	123
9 Systematic arrangement	147
10 General classification schemes	172
11 Notation	183
12 Alphabetical index	200
13 Organization	207
14 Uses of pre-coordinate indexing	213
15 Online public access catalogues	230
 PART III: Pre-coordinate indexing languages	 251
16 Introduction	253
17 The Dewey Decimal Classification	256
18 The Universal Decimal Classification	281
19 The Bibliographic Classification	295
20 The Broad System of Ordering	303
21 The Colon Classification	315
22 The Library of Congress Classification	324
23 Library of Congress subject headings	336
24 Shorter lists of subject headings	348

Part IV: Post-coordinate indexing languages	359
25 Science and technology	361
26 Social sciences and humanities	392
27 Visual art and graphics	409
Part V: The future	421
28 Digital libraries	423
Indexes	437
Author index	438
Subject index	444