

C O N T E N T S

---

Previous Publications	viii
Introduction	1
One Nationalism: A Means of Taking up the Challenges?	13
A Specific Historical Context: Russia Since 1991	14
Russia's Complex Political Agenda in the 1990s	15
Vladimir Putin and the So-called Revival of the State	18
Managing Contradictory Logics: Charismatic Leader or Party Legitimacy?	23
The Fluctuations of Russian Foreign Policy	29
Xenophobia: A Mass Phenomenon in Russia	35
Assessing Popular Support for Nationalist Radicalism	36
A Sociological Given on the Rise	39
Xenophobia in Political and Social Milieus	43
Economic and Symbolic Issues of Xenophobic Sensibilities	46
Two Nationalism as Opposition: The Extra-parliamentary Camp	49
The So-called Radical Right: A Multifaceted Reality	50
The First Institutions of Post-Soviet Reconciliation	51
The Distribution of the Ideological Field in the 1990s	52
The Leading Movements of Political Radicalism: The RNU and the NBP	55
Restructuration of Extra-parliamentary Nationalism in the 2000s	58
Seeking Social Mobilization: The Skinhead Phenomenon	60

	Birth, Structuration, and Politicization of the Skinhead Movement	61
	A Sociological Approach to Skinhead Milieus	63
	Radicalization of Violence in the 2000s	65
	The Ambiguous Attitude of the Political Authorities	67
	An Absence of Judicial Response	68
	Anti-immigration: The Long-Awaited Ideological Consensus?	71
	The Kremlin's Obsessive Fight Against the National Bolsheviks	72
	Formulating a New Strategy: The Movement Against Illegal Immigration	74
	Reconciliation Embodied? The Phenomenon of the Russian March	79
Three	Nationalism as Populism: The Protestation Parties	85
	The "Constructive Opposition": The CPRF and the LDPR	86
	Rebirth, Structure, and Weakening of the Communist Party	87
	The Difficult Building of "Neo-Communism"	90
	The CPRF's Ideological Matrices: State and Orthodox Symphony	93
	The LDPR: Scope and Limits of Populist Protest	96
	Vladimir Zhirinovski or Assumed Imperialism?	98
	Rodina: The New Face of Right-Thinking Nationalism	102
	A Complex Political Journey: Loyalty or Opposition?	103
	The Ideological Kaleidoscope of Rodina and Its Multiple Subgroups	107
	Rodina's Programmatic Discourse and Parliamentary Activities	112
Four	Nationalism as Conservative Centrism: United Russia	119
	The Rebirth of Patriotism Under the Auspices of the Kremlin	120
	1994–1995: Decreasing Political Polarization	120
	1996: The First Call for a New National Ideology	122
	Alexander Lebed: Man of the "Third Way"?	125
	1996–1999: The Rise of the Pioneers of Patriotic Centrism	127
	The 1999–2000 Elections and the Building of a Hegemonic Party	131

CONTENTS

vii

A Presidential Party on the Search for an Ideology?	134
The Legacy of the CPSU: Controlling all the Levers of the State	136
A Propaganda Tool: The Evropa Publishing House	139
Patriotism Versus Nationalism in Presidential Discourse	142
Vladislav Surkov: Father of the Idea of Sovereign Democracy	145
An Absence of Doctrine in Identity Issues?	148
Five Nationalism as Social Consensus: The Patriotic Brand	153
Officializing National Pride through Patriotism	154
The Restoration of Tsarist and Soviet Symbols	155
Consensus through Commemoration	157
Promoting Symbolic Capital: Instrumental Orthodoxy	160
The Patriarchate: An Ideologically Divided Institution	161
The Difficult Relations Between the Orthodox Church and the State	166
Nonfunctional Patriotic Alliances Between the Church, the Army, and the School	170
The Army as a Metaphor for the Nation	175
State Programs for Patriotic Education	177
Flagship Institutions of Militarized Patriotism	180
The Publications of the Defense Ministry and the Security Services	182
Cultural Ways of Promoting Militarized Patriotism	185
Mass Focus on the Second World War and the Rehabilitation of Stalin	188
Conclusion	193
Notes	205
Bibliography	233
Index	249