

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction xii

PART 1 AMERICAN MEDIA IN DECLINE 1

1 Anglo-American, Global, and Euro-American Media Versus Media Nationalism 3

Small- and Large-Population Countries: Globalized and Nonglobalized Media 4

Direct and Indirect Media Exports 6

Euro-American, Eastern Asian, Southern Asian, and Arab Media 8

National and Regional Media Are Stronger Than International Media 10

2 Television Soap Operas, Telenovelas, Brazil 11

Television's Cheap Genres: Rise and Fall of U.S. Dominance 11

From U.S. Soap to Hispanic and Brazilian Telenovela 14

Brazil as Globo-lized Telenovela Nation 18

U.S. Loss of Dominance over Cheap TV Genres and of Big-Population Nations' Media 21

3 From B2B to Bedroom and from the United States to the World 23

"Death of the Newspaper" and of Other Old Media 23

From B2B via Café to Bedroom 25

From the United States to the World 28

Internet: From B2B to Bedroom and from the United States to the World 29

- 4 Freakish Media Finances Benefit Number One 34
 - Global and Freakish Advertising Finance 36
 - Media Gorillas Bulk Up 38
 - Small Finance, Big Reach: News Agencies and Public Broadcasters 40
 - New Media and Freakish Finance 41
- 5 Media Moguls Are National 44
 - A Distinctive Risk-taking and Acquisition Style 45
 - The Cross-Media Jump to Market Dominance 47
 - Acquiring, Owning, and Operating the Assets: Murdoch at Work 51
 - Mogul Political Connections and Regulatory Benefits 54
 - Media Moguls Are National 56
- 6 Anglo-American World News, Public Relations, and Unreported Mass Killings 57
 - English-Language News: The Free Flow of American Imagery and Concepts 58
 - Embroidered News: Anglo-American Public Relations 59
 - Buried News: Unreported Mass Killings 64
- 7 U.S. World Media Peak Around 1950 70
 - 1947–1948: U.S. Media Bestride the World 73
 - The Peak of Anglo-American International News Agencies 75
 - Commercial Media and U.S. Government International Alliance 77
 - Aligning Japanese History and Media 80
- 8 Since 1950: The United States Looking Superlative While Losing World Media Market Share 82
 - Exporting American TV Series 84
 - Good/Bad/Inward-looking United States; and MASH 86
 - U.S. Covert Action Against Foreign Media and Governments 89
 - The United States Loses UNESCO and the Moral High Ground 93
- 9 Decline: U.S. Media, Moral Authority, “Sole Superpower” 96
 - Slowing the TV Export Decline: Cable/Satellite Channels 102
 - Exceptionalism, Bombing, Loss of Moral Authority 104
 - Monopoly Dilemmas: New York Times, Associated Press 109
 - After 2001: American Journalism’s Declining Reputation 117

PART 2 BIG-POPULATION COUNTRIES: INDIA AND CHINA 123

10 The Rise of Big-Population Nations and Their Media 125

Media Similarities in India and China 128

Japan: From Media Dependence to Independence 130

From Colony via National Culture to Commercialization:
Indonesia 132

11 India's Multi-Ring Media Circus 139

Hindi Bollywood Versus Indian Regional Movies 142

Framing Anglo-Indian Slow Change: Media, Dynasty, and Regional Language to Independence 150

Before Television: More Slow Change 157

All Indira Radio, Soap, and Hindi Television-Cable-
Satellite 168

Song, Soap, and Satellite: Hindi Television Goes
Commercial 174

Regions Versus Delhi: Stars, Media, Political Bosses,
Language 180

India's Regional, National, and Southern Asian Media 186

India to Become a World News and Media Leader? 189

12 China: Capitalist-Communist Media Stir-Fry 191

Madame Mao's Trial Boosts Chinese Television 193

1900–1950: The Peak of Foreign Media in China 195

Thirty Million Unreported Famine Deaths . . . and Cultural Revolution 198

China's Regional-Capitalist and Nationalist-Communist
Media 206

Newspaper Journalism, Envelopes, and the Internet 212

TV, Cable, Radio, Film: Most Eyeballs, Most Soap 218

Making the Foreign Media Serve the Eastern Asian Media 229

PART 3 WORLD MEDIA PECKING ORDER 233

13 World Media Pecking Order 235

World Media Pecking Order 236

Japan and the Eastern Asian Media Pecking Order 237

South Korea Ascends the Eastern Asian Media Pecking
Order 240

Slow Change in the World Media Pecking Order 245

- 14 Europe and Euro-American Media 247
 - France and Cultural Nationalism 251
 - Western Europe's Big Five Cultural Nationalists 257
 - Cultural and Media Nationalism in Smaller Western European Countries 261
 - Media Nationalists of ex-Communist Central Europe 267
 - European Cable and Satellite: America's Ambiguous Involvement 272
 - U.S. Satellite and Cable in Europe: 1996–1997 Peak, Then Decline 274
 - Europe and America: Who's Winning? 280
 - Euro-American Media 282
- 15 Africa: Bottom of the Media Pecking Order 285
 - Media in Nigeria and Western Africa 289
 - Radio: Genocide in Rwanda and Democracy in Kenya 302
 - Mobutu, State Failure, and Radio Survival 312
 - South African Media: Apartheid and After 316
 - Toward a Nollywood–South Africa Media Connection 321

PART 4 NATIONAL MEDIA AND WORLD REGION MEDIA 327

- 16 National Media System as Lead Player 329
 - 1776: Newspapers and a New Nation 332
 - Big in 1900: Press, Nation-States, Empires, Diaspora 337
 - Radio and Print, 1945–1965: New Nationalism Replaces Old Imperialism 344
 - Asian Media Tigers: One Nationalist State, Two Ethnic Identities 347
 - National Diaspora Media in the Satellite Television Era 355
- 17 A Separate Arab Media Bloc 360
 - Egypt: Leading Arab Media Power 366
 - French Versus Arabic Media and Culture in Algeria 373
 - Arab Satellite Television 378
 - Enigmas: Saudi Arabia, Conflict, and the Arab Public 382
- 18 Spanish-Language Media in Latin America 385
 - Mexico: Leader of the Media Pecking Order 390
 - Unanticipated Consequences of Political and Media Democratization in Peru and Venezuela 395

	From Guatemala to Colombia: The United States Loses Control of the News Agenda	400
	Spanish-Language Media in the United States	406
	Latin America, North America, and Euro-America	410
19	Twenty-one New Media Nations Replace Communist Media Empire	413
	National Media and End of Empire	416
	The National Media Sequence	420
	Singing Revolution: The Baltic Sequence	421
	Violent Revolution: The South Caucasus Sequence	424
	Hesitant National Revolution: Ukraine's Media Sequence	428
	Reluctant Revolutions: Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan, and Central Asia	431
	Russian Media: Nationalist, At Last	436
	Yugoslavia's Regional Media and Six New Nations	442
20	American Media Decline to Continue?	449
	China and India	450
	National Media: The Dominant Level	450
	The United States Loses Control of World News Agenda and History	452
	Haunting Inconsistencies of American Policy	453
	Hard to Predict	454
	Index	456