

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Translator's Preface	ix
Preface	lxxxix

Part I

Writing before the Letter	1
---	----------

Exergue	3
----------------	---

1.	The End of the Book and the Beginning of Writing	6
	The Program	6
	The Signifier and Truth	10
	The Written Being/The Being Written	18
2.	Linguistics and Grammatology	27
	The Outside and the Inside	30
	The Outside X the Inside	44
	The Hinge [La Brisure]	65
3.	Of Grammatology as a Positive Science	74
	Algebra: Arcanum and Transparence	75
	Science and the Name of Man	81
	The Rebus and the Complicity of Origins	87

Part II

Nature, Culture, Writing	95
--	-----------

Introduction to the "Age of Rousseau"	97
--	----

1.	The Violence of the Letter: From Lévi-Strauss to Rousseau	101
	The Battle of Proper Names	107
	Writing and Man's Exploitation by Man	118
2.	"... That Dangerous Supplement ..."	141
	From/Of Blindness to the Supplement	144
	The Chain of Supplements	152
	The Exorbitant. Question of Method	157
3.	Genesis and Structure of the Essay on the Origin of Languages	165
	I. The Place of the "Essay"	165
	Writing, Political Evil, and Linguistic Evil	167
	The Present Debate: The Economy of Pity	171
	The Initial Debate and the Composition of the Essay	192

II. Imitation	195
The Interval and the Supplement	195
The Engraving and the Ambiguities of Formalism	200
The Turn of Writing	216
III. Articulation	229
"That Movement of the Wand . . ."	229
The Inscription of the Origin	242
The Neume	247
That "Simple Movement of the Finger." Writing and the Prohibition of Incest	255
4. From/Of the Supplement to the Source: The Theory of Writing	269
The Originary Metaphor	270
The History and System of Scripts	280
The Alphabet and Absolute Representation	295
The Theorem and the Theater	302
The Supplement of (at) the Origin	313
Notes	317