

CONTENTS

Foreword by Sidney Hook	ix
Preface	xiii
Credits	xv
Introduction	xvii
1. The Nature of Moral Philosophy	1
Philosophy	1
Philosophy and Civilization	7
The Method and Aims of Philosophy	9
Moral Philosophy and Life Experience	18
The Scope of Moral Philosophy	20
Reflective Morality and Choice	21
2. Man, Nature, and Society	23
The Influence of Darwinism on Philosophy	24
Time and Individuality	32
Social as a Category	41
The Unity of the Human Being	47
3. Value and Nature	56
Before Intelligence Becomes Effective	57
The Status of Values in Nature	58
The Nature of Aims	70
Ends-in-View and Unifications of Value	73
Unified Value: Consummatory Experience	75
Converting Natural Sequences into Consummations	79
4. Human Nature and Value	83
Habit	83
The Nature and Conditions of Growth	90
Growth and Value	94
Unification of the Self	100
Growth and Unification are Social	105
The Individual, the Associated, and the Social	109
Growth, Shared Experience, and Community	114
5. Value and Intelligence	122
Instrumentalism	123
Intelligence and Morals	133
Moral Deliberation and Experimental Logic	134
Deliberation and Choice	139
The Nature of Principles	144
The Construction of Good	146

6. Moral Language	158
The Nature and Function of Language	158
Moral Expressions as Language	162
The Morality of Emotive Language	167
Why not Abandon Moral Language?	170
7. Social Intelligence and Democracy	175
Morality Is Social	176
Philosophies of Freedom	187
Intelligence and Democratic Institutions	205
Intelligence as Social	211
The Tasks of Social Intelligence	230
The Method of Social Intelligence	251
Ideals of Social Intelligence	258
Index	267