

Contents

Acknowledgments	page x
Introduction	1
 Part I Rethinking nationhood and nationalism
1 Rethinking nationhood: nation as institutionalized form, practical category, contingent event	13
2 Nationhood and the national question in the Soviet Union and its successor states: an institutionalist account	23
3 National minorities, nationalizing states, and external national homelands in the New Europe	55
 Part II The old “New Europe” and the new
4 Nationalizing states in the old “New Europe” – and the new	79
5 Homeland nationalism in Weimar Germany and “Weimar Russia”	107
6 Aftermaths of empire and the unmixing of peoples	148
Bibliography	179
Index	193