

Contents

Introduction	I
The purpose of this book	1
Who is the interviewer?	1
The helping model in this book	2
Qualities of the effective professional helper	3
Using this book	3
I Overview of Processes, Stages and Contexts of Helping	5
Processes and stages within the single interview	5
Beginning the interview effectively	6
Responding with a range of reflective and empathic responses	6
Managing direction and movement throughout the interview	7
Achieving the work of the interview	7
Managing the conclusion of the interview	8
Stages in the helping process over several interviews	8
Stage one – making a connection, exploring issues and gathering relevant information	9
Stage two – locating client strengths, directions and goals	10
Stage three – action strategies for change	10
The contexts of modern interviewing practice in the human services	11
Personal and social contexts for modern life	11
Values contexts in professional practice in the human services	14
Organizational contexts of human service work	16
Gendered contexts of interviewing	19
CHAPTER OVERVIEW	22

2	Making the Initial Connection with Nonverbal and Verbal Skills	23
	Nonverbal skills: key processes in connecting	24
	The unspoken realm of communication	24
	Gender and culture in nonverbal communication	25
	Effective nonverbal behaviour in the interview	26
	The classic nonverbal attending position	28
	Furniture and physical surrounding for interviewing	28
	Avoiding physical barriers	29
	Forward body lean	29
	Space considerations in body positioning	30
	Use of eye contact and qualities of eye gaze	31
	Relaxed use of attending functions	31
	Facial expression	32
	Hand gestures and other body movements	32
	Head nodding	33
	Psychological attending	33
	Following skills in the counselling interview	35
	Verbal 'door openers'	35
	Occasional sub-verbal sounds	35
	Minimal reflections	36
	Appropriate attentive silence	37
	Verbal foundations of empathic responding	38
	Maintaining the reflective approach	38
	The concept of active empathy	40
	Reaching for shared meaning in the interpreted interview	41
	Background issues to consider in using an interpreter	42
	Roadblocks to empathic interview management	45
	CHAPTER OVERVIEW	50
3	Paraphrasing as the Foundation of Effective Responding	51
	Reflective components of the paraphrase	51
	Reflection of feeling	52
	Immediacy as a quality of feeling reflections	53
	The nature of feelings	54
	Expanding vocabularies to accurately acknowledge clients' feelings	54
	Feeling word lists	56

Reflection of situation	58
Reflection of behaviour	59
Linking components to make a paraphrase	61
Examples of paraphrases	62
Order of components in a paraphrase	64
Ways to help clients to identify and link feelings, situations and behaviours	66
Self-talk and internal behaviours	66
Separating feelings from situations/behaviours	67
Strengths perspective in paraphrasing	69
Purposes of summaries	71
CHAPTER OVERVIEW	73

4

Prompting the Client and Recording the Interview

	75
Causes of inappropriate probing	76
The difference between questions and probes	77
Open and closed forms of probes	78
Directed and restricted probes	79
Probes to avoid	79
Why questions	80
Leading or suggestive probes	80
Advice disguised as questions	80
Double and garbled questions	80
Accidental questions	81
Probes in different stages of interviewing	81
Purposes of questions or probes in different stages	82
Using probes to help clients to be more specific and detailed in exploring issues	82
Using probes to focus on clients' strengths, needs, wants and goals	83
But avoid probes asking the client about final solutions	83
Recording processes in the interview	84
Pressure of notetaking	85
Taping or video recording interviews	86
General consideration of all types of recording in interviewing	86
CHAPTER OVERVIEW	87

5	Managing the Focus of the Interview	89
	The importance of a preliminary mapping of the issues	89
	Defining focus points in the interview	91
	Initiating the interaction effectively	91
	Getting started	91
	Defining purpose and scope	92
	Planning the interpreted interview	93
	Tensions between empathy and direction	94
	Interviewing clients who seem unresponsive	96
	The issue of client 'resistance'	97
	Focusing the over-talkative client	98
	Managing transitions between points in the interview	99
	The nature of transitions	100
	Types of transitions	101
	Steps and processes in the well-managed transition	102
	Selecting the issue for focus	103
	Summarizing the main points from an issue or aspect of the client's story	103
	Signalling the worker's intention to shift the focus	104
	Using an open probe to make the shift	105
	Empathic responding to the client's follow-on material	105
	Concluding the interview	106
	CHAPTER OVERVIEW	109
6	Goal and Action Work with Clients	111
	Importance of the behaviour element in preparing for goal focused work	112
	Forms of client behaviour	112
	Visible, external behaviours or actions	113
	Internalized behaviours	113
	Reframing clients' negative thinking	114
	Recognizing patterns in clients' thinking	115
	Helping clients with blind spots	118
	Focusing on goals and managing client change processes	119
	Goal directed thinking – or not!	120

Internal thought processes and goal-focused work	121
The positive impact of well-formed goals	122
Well-formed goals	123
Keep goal talk simple	124
Goal bridges and the miracle question	125
Brainstorming strategies	125
Best-fit approach to selecting strategies	127
Turning goals into solution-focused action – the path to change	128
The importance of small ‘baby’ steps towards change	128
Case study – Jo’s plan of baby steps toward change	128
Motivational interviewing approaches	131
Phases of motivational work	131
A framework for assessing motivational states	132
Phase 1 – Building motivation for change	132
Phase 2 – Strengthening clients’ commitment to change	134
Cognitive-behavioural strategies	135
Background issues in the development of CBT	135
Continuing importance of inner language and self-talk in behaviour change	136
Conditioning and cognitive learning theory	137
Cognitive information processing	137
Self-attribution and constructive narrative	137
Resilience in goal and action work	138
CHAPTER OVERVIEW	140

7

Managing Crises: Violence, Self-Harm and Anger

141

Crisis management in interviewing	141
Sources of crises	142
Interviewing emphases with clients in crisis	143
Clients who threaten violence and self-harm	146
Self-protective plans and clients with violent backgrounds	148
Clients who discuss suicide	148
Professional obligations to warn and report	150
Managing anger in interviews	152
Practitioner and client anger	152
Issues about expressed and repressed anger	153

Anger, stress and hostility	154
The uses of anger	155
CHAPTER OVERVIEW	156
8 Self-care in Counselling	157
Defining stress	157
Three phases of the general adaptation system (GAS)	158
Alarm or reaction	158
Resistance or adaptation	159
Exhaustion	159
A case study of stress	161
Susceptibility and resistance to stress	161
Control issues and stress	163
Professional burnout	164
Symptoms of professional burnout	165
Learning to survive – strategies to manage stress and burnout	165
Organizationally located strategies	166
Maintaining physical health and well-being	166
Defending oneself with communication skills	166
Building internal control	167
Growing resilience in self and others	167
Support and supervision as stress management	169
The value of reflexive learning in practice	169
Layers of learning in reflexive practice	171
Challenges to the reflexive mode of practice	172
Transformative learning practices	174
CHAPTER OVERVIEW AND CONCLUSION	175
Epilogue	177
References	177
Index	183