

IGU MARGINAL REGIONS

Series Editor: Walter Leimgruber,
University of Fribourg, Switzerland

Marginality studies have become imperative in a world which is increasingly being divided into haves and have-nots. This series, published in collaboration with the IGU Commission on Evolving Issues of Geographical Marginality, covers a wide range of topics, covering cultural, ecological, economic, political and social aspects of marginality, as well as the marginalization process. The series brings together high quality research monographs and edited volumes from all over the world.

Bringing together a selection of nine case studies from marginal regions of Europe, this book provides an up-to-date overview across all aspects of marginality including geographic, economic, social and cultural. It is divided into three main sections: the first addressing the changing development discourse, the second examining how to market marginality and history, and the third focusing on resources and constraints in community development.
