

Contents

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	xi
1. Introduction: thinking about primary geography Simon Catling	1
2. Enquiring into primary teachers' geographical knowledge Simon Catling and Emma Morley	21
3. English primary trainee teachers' perceptions of geography Emma Morley	39
4. Contesting powerful knowledge: the primary geography curriculum as an articulation between academic and children's (ethno-) geographies Simon Catling and Fran Martin	54
5. Ethnogeography: towards liberatory geography education Fran Martin	73
6. More than just core knowledge? A framework for effective and high-quality primary geography Paula Owens	87
7. Geography and creativity: developing joyful and imaginative learners Stephen Scoffham	103
8. Subject-based and cross-curricular approaches within the revised primary curriculum in Northern Ireland: teachers' concerns and preferred approaches Richard Greenwood	117
9. Teachers' perspectives on curriculum making in Primary Geography in England Simon Catling	133
10. Children researching their urban environment: developing a methodology Elisabeth Barratt Hacking and Robert Barratt	160
11. My Place : Exploring children's place-related identities through reading and writing Emma Charlton, Gabrielle Cliff Hodges, Pam Pointon, Maria Nikolajeva, Erin Spring, Liz Taylor and Dominic Wyse	173

CONTENTS

12. Same old story: the problem of object-based thinking as a basis for teaching distant places Fran Martin	190
13. 'They are like us' – teaching about Europe through the eyes of children Daniela Schmeinck	205
14. Giving younger children voice in primary geography: empowering pedagogy – a personal perspective Simon Catling	217
Index	241