

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments	vii
1 Introduction: Edmund Burke's Concept of Corruption and Beyond Jonathan Mendilow and Ilan Peleg	1
2 The Meaning of Corruption in World Opinion Frank Louis Rusciano	27
3 The Shifting Landscape of Corruption in the United States: Legal Corruption, Systemic Corruption, or a New Norm? Barry Seldes	47
4 Can Public Financing and Citizens United Coexist? Robert G. Boatright	69
5 Corruption and the Arab Spring: Comparing the Pre- and Post-Spring Situation Ilan Peleg and Jonathan Mendilow	99
6 Ancient Democracy and the Modern Era: Why Is Corruption So Common These Days? Rebecca Fiske	117
7 The Austrian Way: Neocorporatism and Neoliberal Corruption Barbara Franz and Jürgen Pfeffer	133
8 Corruptible Competition: Local Power Nodes, Corruption, and Sleaze Michael Brogan	153
9 Tackling Corruption, Finally?: How Domestic and Supranational Factors Have Led to Incremental Policy Change in Italy Daniela R. Piccio, Fabrizio Di Mascio, and Alessandro Natalini	173
10 Corruption Perception and Collective Action: The Case of Spain Manuel Villoria, Fernando Jiménez, and Ana Revuelta	197
11 State Capitalism and Corruption: The Case of China Jacob White	223

12	Anthropological Approaches to Corruption: Globalizing Processes and Case Studies	247
	Roberta Fiske-Rusciano
	Index	267
	Contributors to the Volume	269