

CONTENTS

Foreword by David Orr	7
Aims of the Briefing/Summary of the Argument	10
Introduction	12
Chapter 1 Towards Sustainable Education	21
Introduces the concept of a sustainable education paradigm, looks at the roles of education and the current modernist agenda, the need to go beyond environmental education, and education in its wider contexts.
Chapter 2 Education and Learning in Change	34
Looks at tensions in education as a 'transmissive' and a 'transformative' agent, the difference between education in change and education for change, and between a broadly mechanistic and a broadly ecological perspective.
Chapter 3 Towards an Ecological Paradigm for Education	49
Reviews the power of paradigms in affecting educational theory, practice and policy, and outlines the bases and possibility of a more ecological educational culture, echoing parallel changes in wider society.
Chapter 4 Re-making Education and Learning	62
Presents and comments on brief case studies and models which in some way exemplify and pioneer a more ecological educational paradigm.
Chapter 5 Reorienting Education: Designing for Change	77
Sets out change models, action points, and a vision of sustainable education to inform discussion, design and action at different levels of educational systems.
Appendix I References	89
Appendix II Organizations and websites	92